La Dietrich Stops Show On Visit to Commons

LONDON (Reuters)—Marlene Dietrich, swept into Britain's ancient House of Commons today and MPs took time off from law-making to gaze in admiration. The world's most glamorous grandmother looked her svelte best in white suit, hat, gloves and high-heeled shoes. Her only jewelry was a sparkling ruby and gold bracelet.

In vivid contrast to cool Marlene was her 225-pound hostess, Mrs. Bessie Braddock, who appeared like many other MPs to be wilting from the heat.

Marlene lunched with Bessie and five other Socialist members before taking a seat in the distinguished visitors' gallery. There she sat, an intriguing figure of concentration, as MPs on the floor of the House tried to keep their eyes down and concentrate on business.

The German-born actress made a complete tour of the building, followed by autograph hunters. She also chatted with scores of MPs.

Bessie met the actress at a London nightspot last week after accepting the nightclub's offer to introduce her to the audience.

Legal Battery At Vancouver Police Probe

Four of five counsel expected to play leading role in Vancouver police investigation, which opened today, are seen above. Left to right, T. G. Norris, counsel for police chief Walter Mulligan; Lawrence Hill, who was dismissed as counsel by wounded Det. Sgt. Len Cuthbert; G. L. Murray, representing service which distributes tabloid Flash in which reporter Ray Munro, who resigned Tuesday, sparked inquiry, and J. G. A. Hutcheson, commission counsel.

Resignation of Mrs. Ovea Culp Hobby, U.S. secretary of health, education and welfare, was accepted by President Eisenhower today. The second woman to hold cabinet rank in U.S. history, Mrs. Hobby had been under Democrat fire because of the difficulties in the Salk vaccine program.

France Proposes Cut In Arms Spending To Aid Needy Lands

Disarmament Proposal Will Be Placed
Before Big Four Talks At Geneva

PARIS (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure today formally proposed that the Big Four powers cut their military spending and devote the money saved to an international fund for development of backward countries.

Faure made his formal proposal at a special press conference in the cabinet room of his official residence. Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay was at his side as Faure launched his disarmament proposal.

(Several times in recent years it has been proposed at United Nations meetings that the world's great powers disarm and put the money saved from the military budget into a plan called SUNFED—Special United Nations Funds for Economic Development.)

(The United States and other countries have said that when world disarmament becomes a reality they favor such a use for funds previously spent on arms.)

Faure told the press conference that the Big Four must look for a solution to German unification, the organization of European security and a formula for disarmament.

Unification of Germany would be made easier if European security could be assured, he said.

EASIER TO FIND

European security in turn would be easier to find "if a general simultaneously, real and controlled disarmament became possible at the same time."

"We must, in my opinion, make a particular effort to go toward such disarmament," Faure told the correspondents.

"Why, parallel with the program of general disarmament, not begin immediately by subtracting parts of the military expenses of the Big Four powers, for example, and putting the equivalent in a four power fund, which would be open—to all who would not utilize it to destructive, sterile and negative ends, but to general social and positive undertakings?" Faure asked.

"Let the Big Four join in reducing their security expenses and contribute the counterpart of the savings to the development of underdeveloped countries or regions of the world to the amelioration of the poorest population," Faure proposed.

Reports from inside the prison said the key calm Mrs. Ellis had maintained during her trial in June, and ever since finally broke Tuesday night. Prison sources said she sobbed herself to sleep, screaming, "I don't want to die."

Earlier in the night she had said good-bye to her mother and father, who reported she was resigned to her fate. The woman had refused to appeal for mercy. Home Secretary, Gwilym Lloyd-George, the only man who can recommend royal clemency, earlier this week turned down petitions signed by more than 25,000 persons.

Only government and prison officials witnessed the execution.

Bootlegger Payoff Plan Charged At Vancouver Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—Detective-Sergeant Robert H. Leatherdale testified before a Royal commission today that Police Chief Walter Mulligan sought a deal to protect operations of some Vancouver bootleggers.

The former head of the police gambling squad was the first witness to appear before the Tupper commission appointed June 24 to investigate charges of corruption and laxity in the 735-man force.

A few minutes earlier Mulligan, now on leave of absence pending the outcome of the hearing, offered through his counsel to open his personal financial accounts to commissioner Reginald H. Tupper.

Sgt. Leatherdale said the bootlegger deal was brought up by Mulligan in May, 1949.

"On May 3, 1949, when I was in charge of the liquor detail without rank, I was called to Chief Mulligan's office and he told me I was to be made sergeant in charge of the detail," Leatherdale testified.

"He asked me how things were around town and mentioned he understood some bootleggers had been operating for years. He asked if I had any objection to letting a few places run, making only periodic seizures."

"He said this would do us both a lot of good . . . and if you have any friends bootlegging it is okay to let them go on."

Sgt. Leatherdale said the chief had told him Det. Sgt. Leonard Cuthbert knew "all about the arrangements."

A suicide attempt by Sgt. Cuthbert June 24 helped spark the inquiry.

As the hearing opened Mr. Tupper announced that he had been advised by Sgt. Cuthbert's doctors that the detective would not be physically fit to appear before the hearing for eight or 10 days. Cuthbert underwent a minor operation Tuesday.

Cuthbert shot himself in the chest at the police station with his own service revolver. The bullet missed his heart by a fraction of an inch.

"I told him I had a clean record and wanted to keep it clean. He said that was all right. I was the man he wanted for the job."

He said he gave a statement to the prosecutor a short time later and that in 1951 when Det. Sgt. Archie Plummer took over the gambling squad "I had a talk with him and told him the facts."

Under cross-examination, Sgt. Leatherdale said Mr. Scott had given him the impression the chief was just testing him.

He also said he had discussed the matter with Magistrate Oscar Orr, a member of the police commission.

Sgt. Leatherdale said that in April, 1949, he met Magistrate Orr in the courtroom and quoted Mr. Orr as saying:

"I don't want you to think we haven't done anything about this. We have spent time and money investigating but can't get any direct evidence."

There was no immediate indication that Mr. Tupper would accept the offer.

Mr. Norris also told the commissioner he had been advised that Howard Sommerville, editor of the weekly tabloid Flash, would be unable to appear before the inquiry and that Louis Ruby, publisher, would only come to Vancouver from Toronto if his expenses were paid.

Mr. Norris had asked the commissioner to ask both Flash officials to appear.

Two of them were women—Dr. Charity Taylor, 39-year-old governor of the prison, and the prison matron.

More than 30 policemen, standing shoulder to shoulder, kept the crowd outside away from the massive oak gates into the prison yard. Just before the execution Mrs. Ellis' brother, Julian Arthur Neilson, strode up the gates, beat on them, and handed a bunch of white carnations to a guard.

Returning to the crowd, his face ashen and his lips trembling, he said, "I just told him to tell Ruth I would never forget her and God bless her."

The crowd waited until a guard stepped through the gates and tacked a black-framed death notice and the death certificate on the wall.

One man sank to his knees, shouting over and over, "She should have been freed." The police hauled him up and hurried him away.

Frail, grey-haired John Oakes knelt with his hands clasped in prayer, shouting, "for the souls of Mrs. Ellis, of the public executioner and of all of us." A group of men standing behind him laughed.

A violinist stood back from the crowd, sawing on his fiddle. "I have permission to play," he said. "And, I'm playing Bach's 'Be Thou With Me.' I'm sure she (Mrs. Ellis) heard it."

sign around his neck said, "No aims please."

MODEL DIED QUICKLY, QUIETLY

LONDON (UP)—The British Home Office, responsible for the execution today of Mrs. Ruth Ellis, took the unprecedented step of denying a report that Mrs. Ellis had been dragged to the gallows, screaming "I don't want to die."

Dr. Ralph Williams, principal medical officer of the prison, said "the execution was carried out expeditiously and humanely."

TWO WOMEN PRESENT AT EXECUTION

Crowd of 1,000 Weeps, Prays, Laughs As Ruth Ellis Hanged

LONDON (AP)—A crowd of 1,000 persons—some weeping, some praying, others laughing—stood outside London's Holloway prison for women today as Ruth Ellis, beautiful blonde mother of two children, died on the gallows for the Easter Sunday murder of the lover who jilted her.

As hangman Albert Perrepoint pulled the death trap its slam resounded throughout the building, touching off hysterical cries from other inmates.

Reports from inside the prison said the key calm Mrs. Ellis had maintained during her trial in June, and ever since finally broke Tuesday night. Prison sources said she sobbed herself to sleep, screaming, "I don't want to die."

Earlier in the night she had said good-bye to her mother and father, who reported she was resigned to her fate. The woman had refused to appeal for mercy. IN PARLIAMENT

Tories Fail in Move
For Senate Reform

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

Opposition leader Drew says Canadians may demand abolition of the Senate unless it is reformed and made more effective.

The Progressive Conservative leader said Tuesday there is need for an upper chamber in Canada's parliament. But the present Senate has little impact on the public because of "unreality" in its debates.

A Commons vote of 95 to 62, however, rejected his party's motion that the government should take steps to reform the Senate so it could "more effectively discharge the constitutional function it was intended to serve."

Liberal members voted solidly against the proposal, which was supported by all opposition groups and three independent members. No cabinet ministers spoke in the debate.

CCF members said they prefer to have the Senate abolished. But if it must be retained, it should be improved.

Harold E. Winch, CCF-Vancouver East, said that since 1940 the Senate has rejected no bills sent to it from the Commons, although between 1923 and 1940 it rejected 43 of 1,164 Commons bills.

Stooge of Government—Winch

"From 1940, it is completely obvious that the Senate is the stooge of the government," Mr. Winch said.

Mr. Drew said the reason for Senate "acquiescence" since 1940 was a pledge required by the late Liberal prime minister Mackenzie King that senators he appointed would agree to support government legislation. Since 1940, there had been a Liberal majority in the upper house.

The 102-seat Senate has now

73 Liberals, seven Progressive Conservatives and 22 vacancies.

Mr. Drew said the need for Senate reform would only be obscured if Prime Minister St. Laurent, as reported in press speculation, appointed politically-independent persons to the Senate.

Unless the Senate was made more effective, there might be an overwhelming demand for its abolition. It costs $3,000,000 a year to operate. The government should make sure the money is well spent.

Return to Defence Estimates

After rejecting the Conservative Senate reform proposal, members resumed study of defence department estimates which closed today.

Wing Cmdr. Angus MacLean, (PC-Queens) urged government consideration of adopting strategic bombers capable of carrying nuclear bombs. He said Canada is dependent on the United States strategic air force as a deterrent to aggression. He suggested that the Commonwealth form a strategic air force, with Canada supporting one of its squadrons.

Walter Dinsdale (PC-Brandon-Souris) said the cutback in production of CF-100 jets seems to indicate the government is confused and uncertain about the needs for air defence in the present nuclear age.

Mr. Dinsdale also suggested that the number of RCAF jet crashes has adversely affected recruiting.

Defence Minister Campney replied that the RCAF's rate of jet crashes is a little lower than in the United Kingdom and a shade higher than in the U.S.

Adopt Procedure Rule Changes

After 15 speeches and four hours of talk the Commons Tuesday adopted a bill aimed at saving time and sessions.

The changes in rules of procedure, scheduled to go into effect next session, were worked out by a special committee which started its study last session. It was able to agree on a method to streamline the business of the House only after all parties made compromises.

The committee's unanimous report was tabled June 14. Major changes are limitation of speeches to 30 minutes instead of 40 in some sittings and a time restriction of 10 days on the Throne speech debate and eight on the budget debate. This session they lasted 16 and 13 days, respectively.

On July 1 Finance Minister Harris moved adoption of the report and spoke for 12 minutes. Davie Fulton (PC-Kamloops) seconded the motion in a 35-minute speech. Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) pledged his party's support in 25 minutes and Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia) took five minutes to say he went along with the report.

The debate was reopened Tuesday by Jean-Francois Pouliot (L-Temiscouata) who took 25 minutes to say that every member can say what he has to say within 20 minutes or so if he isn't interrupted.

After Mr. Pouliot resumed his seat, five CCF, two Progressive Conservative, one Social Credit and two Independent members made 10-to-20-minute speeches. They all supported the report although two CCF members, G. H. Castleden, Yorkton, and Erhart Regier, Burnaby-Coquitlam, objected to time limits on the Throne speech and budget debates.

Hard surfacing of the Canadian section of the Alaska highway, running from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, was urged Tuesday night.

Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary North) said during discussion of defence estimates that the highway now is the Bodies of Seven U.S. Youngsters Brought Down From Icy Peak

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—They came down from the mountain slung in death over the backs of pack horses—seven young boys who heeled too late the warnings rumbled high above timberline by the never-melting snow.

Towering Mount Temple triggered an avalanche on 11 American climbers Monday after they had turned back from their attempt to reach the summit, mauling them 1,000 feet down the mountainside under the savage force of a river of snow.

There were four survivors, two of them hurt severely. The other seven—the oldest 16 and the youngest 13—died one by one as they lay hurt and far from help with freezing rain and hail pounding the 11,636-foot peak.

which arrived here four days ago with two camp councillors. Their assault on the mountain was made without guide and they were equipped only with rope and ice axes. They wore ordinary boots and spiked baseball and track shoes.

Tony Woodfield, 16-year-old from Rye, N. Y., who survived what was the worst disaster in the history of climbing in the Canadian Rockies, said the party turned back at the 10,000-foot level—warned by a number of small avalanches.

"I heard and saw the avalanche," he said. "On the way up we had seen several snow falls (small avalanches) and we turned back because of that."

"I yelled 'avalanche!' and dug my axe into the ice and hung on."

He said he was with two other boys buying groceries at Lake Louise, Alta., when the accident happened.

Dickenson said he returned to the camp in time to meet a runner who told of the avalanche. He said he helped bring down the first injured boy and accompanied him to hospital.

The other councillor was W. H. Oeser, public school teacher from Baltimore. Oeser started the climb but dropped out at the 8,500-foot level to take pictures. He saw the tragedy but could do nothing and spent the hours until rescue trying to comfort the dying.

Used Shoe to Dig Out Victim

Woodfield gave all his clothing except his trousers to the injured boys and stayed at the scene until search parties arrived. Then he broke down. He told his story in a trembling voice.

He told of trying to save the Watts boy, who died of injuries and exposure.

"I heard Watts crying under the snow," he said. "I used my shoe to dig him out and got everything but one leg."

Woodfield was lead man on the way up, when each boy climbed on his own. He was anchor man on the way down when the boys were roped together five feet apart.

The rope broke as the avalanche hit and, because of his position, Woodfield escaped the wild tremble. Smith, second man on the CALGARY (BUP) — A buckboard driver was fatally injured here Tuesday as the city's famous stampele was marred by an accident for the second day in a row.

Charles Mitchell Lyle died two and a half hours after his two-horse team bolted. His two lady passengers suffered minor injuries.

Lyle was thrown from the old-fashioned buckboard when the team went between a parked car and another vehicle on a downtown street.

The injured were Mrs. J. H. Young, of Calgary, and Miss Elizabeth Carter, of Toronto.

Lyle was in his early 70's.

Tories Fail to Get Dempsey Case Details

Revenue Minister Refuses to Disclose If Department of Company Gave Out Tip

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition today tried repeatedly — and unsuccessfully — to find out whether information given Premier Frost of Ontario by Revenue Minister McCann came from the revenue department or from a private company.

Dr. McCann, who is a director of Guaranty Trust Company, said sources of information concerning tax matters must remain secret.

He was supported by Prime Minister St. Laurent who said it would be improper to disclose the sources of information.

Opposition leader Drew and John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) tried several times to discover whether the information in Ontario's Dempsey political case came from Dr. McCann's department or Guaranty Trust.

Speaker Rene Beaudoin cited a House rule that a cabinet minister does not have to answer a question or give his reasons for refusing.

Mr. McCann, federal member for Renfrew South, has been accused of tipping Premier Frost that James Dempsey, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Renfrew South, received campaign contributions of $6,800 in 1951 without reporting them.

Mr. Dempsey received the contributions from the late James Drohan, a constituent. The Guaranty Trust administered the Drohan estate.

LATE SPORT

ASCOT, Eng. (UP) — Botticelli, an Italian thoroughbred owned by Marchese Incisa Della Rochetta, won the Gold Cup race by three lengths today at the Ascot meeting.

Blue Prince II, owned by W. M. Jeffords of the United States, was second. Elpenor, owned by France's Marcel Boussac, was a length farther back in third place.

Jardinere provided the day's most popular triumph when he carried Queen Elizabeth's colors to victory in the next event, the King George V Stakes.

Nicholas Nickleby, a lightly-regarded four-year-old, won the Royal Hunt Cup.

ABOARD THE U.S.C.G. GREYHAWK, AT SEA (UP) — The front-sailing yacht Morning Star appeared a cinch to set a new mark for the trans-Pacific yacht race today as it knifed to within less than 300 miles of Honolulu's Diamond Head.

In the 1949 race she set a record of 10 days, 10 hours and 13 minutes for the 2,225-mile race from California.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The stock of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers dipped slightly today as word circulated that two star imports would not be reporting to the football training camp which opens Friday night.

Newspaper clippings from the United States being shown here indicate that quarterback Bobby Freeman and centre Jack Lockyear, both of Auburn University last year, have decided to join Cleveland Browns of the National Football League despite having signed Bomber contracts and having received bonuses.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Prince Albert federal penitentiary inmates staged a two-hour riot within the prison walls Tuesday night but officials gave no reason for the outbreak.

Warden C. C. Coutts was absent on holidays when the institution's 600 prisoners set fire to almost a dozen buildings and seized eight guards as hostages. The guards were released within minutes when tear gas was used.

Deputy warden G. T. Crofton said one guard and one prisoner were injured in the disturbance which resulted in three destroyed buildings and others severely damaged. Several shots were fired. It took firefighters 4½ hours to control the blaze.

SIMULTANEOUS FIRES
The riot broke out just as the evening exercise period ended at 6.30 p.m. Fires were started simultaneously in the stable, the coal and flour shed, the paint shop, the old shops dome, the laundry, the engineers' shops, the fire hall and the cement shed.

The stables, the flour shed and the cement shed were destroyed. No estimate of damage was given.

An investigation was started immediately after the disturbance, deputy warden Crofton reported.

He added that the prisoners did not attempt to escape. Guards lined the wall and held the prisoners back at gun point. The focal point of the disturbance was the tower through which prisoners must pass on their way to cells from exercise.

MAIN WINS — QUEBEC CITY (BUP) — Top-seeded Lorne Main of Toronto, who arrived at the Canadian tennis championships two days late, began catching up today by trouncing Guy Michaud of Quebec City 6-0, 6-1.

Retreat at Ottawa

AS IT MIGHT HAVE FORESEEN when it drafted the Defence Production Act, history has proved too strong for the St. Laurent Government.

Blocked in Parliament and undoubtedly opposed by most Canadians outside it, this legislation perforce has been altered and the emergency powers of Mr. Howe limited to three years.

The Government has been compelled to retreat in humiliation when it should have foreseen this result and avoided it by admitting a mistake in the first place.

Only loyalty to Mr. Howe could have persuaded Mr. St. Laurent and his Cabinet to ask Parliament for emergency powers without a time limit. Such a blanket bill was not needed and its disregard of ordinary constitutional considerations could not be defended. Yet the Government continued to defend it week after week against an opposition filibuster until further defence became impossible against the obvious wishes of the nation.

Mr. St. Laurent has thus made a grave error, especially surprising in one of Canada's leading constitutional lawyers. His error, it would seem, was to put his loyalty to a colleague above his obligation to the constitution. No doubt the lesson thus learned will be salutary.

While the opposition, quite naturally, exploited the Government's error for political purposes, nevertheless it deserves the thanks of the nation for blocking this objectionable bill. The Conservative Party has won its first parliamentary victory in many years thanks mainly to the stubbornness of the Government.

At all events, Mr. Howe will enjoy the powers he requires for his task of arming the nation and, at the end of three years, or before if necessary, those powers can be reviewed in the light of existing conditions. That is all Mr. Howe should have sought at the beginning and all that he could expect to get from any Parliament worthy of its tradition.

Sincere and Inappropriate

WITH COMMENDABLE ENthusiasm and deep appreciation for his Strait-swimming feat, the City Council has proceeded with arrangements to make Bert Thomas a Freeman of the City. No honor could have been more sincerely inspired nor more inappropriate.

Two other men only, Viscount Willingdon and Mr. R. P. Butchart, have been made Freeman. The title was conferred, in these cases, on persons to whom the city wished to show its affection and gratitude, but who were in such financial circumstances that a more practical gift would not have been suitable.

In consequence they were awarded the distinction at special ceremonies which gave them due recognition for the contributions they had made to the community and Canada.

Apart from the intangible honor of the award, the perquisites are negligible. A Freeman may vote, or stand for office without property qualifications or tax payment, provided he is a British subject.

In the case of Mr. Thomas—and there should be no doubt about the general admiration in Greater Victoria for his spectacular achievement—even this slight concession does not hold. He cannot vote or seek civic office unless he becomes a Canadian citizen.

Alderman Millard Mooney unquestionably saw the anomaly of the proposal and expressed a sensible opinion on the question, yielding only to the wishes of his colleagues to provide the necessary unanimity.

In so far as Victoria has chosen this method of paying its tribute, the gesture is understandable—and presumably the city feels it has no other honor to confer. At the same time a little more imagination might have been brought into play. The man who first swam the Strait of Juan de Fuca quite conceivably might have preferred a more tangible expression of goodwill.

And if titles are required, what would have been wrong with seeking Port Angeles co-operation to establish the new designation "Master of the Deux Ports." The phrase has a good, round ring to it.

Mr. Thomas may feel flattered by the city's action, but he will be excused if he harbors the thought that somehow he has been made an honorary vice-president without pay. This is particularly true in the light of the rather unimpressive response to the Bert Thomas fund. It appears that very few organizations realize what a valuable contribution the Tacoma ex-marine has made to this city.

Mr. Gunderson's Ambition

ANYONE WHO VALUES OUR constitutional system will approve Mr. Einar Gunderson's decision to re-enter politics. If he can find a seat in the Legislature his present equivocal position as an ostensible civil servant and de facto finance minister will be cured. But, after two defeats in three tries, that is a big if.

Unfortunately for the constitution, Mr. Gunderson proposes to continue as the real administrator of the finance department, without the mandate of the people, until the next provincial election, some two years hence.

Meanwhile a so-called civil servant, on the government payroll, not only interests himself in party politics but announces that he will be a party candidate at the first convenient opportunity. So far as we can recall, Canadian politics have never provided such a spectacle before.

Mr. Gunderson's ambition for legislative office is natural and proper. That cannot be said for his present posture as Mr. Bennett's chief lieutenant in government when the voters have twice rejected him at the polls.

The basis of our constitution is the principle that no man shall make public policy or administer a government department unless he has been elected by the voters.

How can Mr. Bennett say that this principle has not been violated in the case of Mr. Gunderson? Equally important is the principle that no civil servant shall take any part in politics.

How does Mr. Bennett explain Mr. Gunderson's place in the Social Credit hierarchy, his speeches at party meetings and his admission that he is only waiting for a seat in the Legislature?

It will be for the voters, when they get the chance, not for Mr. Bennett, to say whether they approve these unprecedented arrangements.

'Quiet Is Requested'

IN THE INTERESTS OF PUBLIC information and in support of the principle of open covenants openly arrived at, the City Council might explain to the citizens this week's action on the civic auditorium question.

Victorians had been led to believe that the finance committee would seek council support for a motion suggesting use of the Capital City Grant for construction of the auditorium. The people of this community had, moreover, been given the impression that Premier Bennett looked with favor on the proposal and had indicated that his Government might increase the grant to cover total costs of the construction over a 20-year period.

The finance committee on Monday was apparently seeking council authority for a request for information from the grant committee when the mayor wrapped a cloak around the entire issue. An official nod from the council in favor of the auditorium deal, the mayor indicated, would be called "impudence" on the street.

"I don't want to say something that might be misunderstood," he said. "The Government is doing all right on it. Now please leave it alone."

Why? From time to time the auditorium proposal has been labelled "newspaper talk" in certain circles. When a council committee seeks to lift it beyond any such description by making a formal approach to the committee in charge of apportioning the grant, such action appears "impudent" in certain quarters.

Under the circumstances, just how is the committee in charge of grant distribution to be approached and informed that the auditorium plan is widely supported here?

Does some unidentified person, wearing a slouch hat well over his eyes and his coat collar turned up to his ears, pass a committee member on a darkened street and give him the information out of the corner of his mouth?

Why is the auditorium issue something that should be left alone? Don't the City Council members want to accept the responsibility of asking for the arrangement in the name of the people who elected them?

Song of The Volga Boatmen

Chips

BY DAVE BROCK

DURING this present month, the wholesale confectioners of Britain, 1,800 of them, will refuse to sell or buy any of the goods made by one of the "Big Five" chocolate firms. The federation of wholesalers had asked the firm for increased profit margins (both wholesale and retail) and this request had been rejected. The federation said the profit margin for wholesale and retail distributors was about half what it was in 1939. The retail confectioner had to work on a 14 per cent gross profit, which was uneconomic.

Well, I don't know the rights of the case, but the wholesalers seem unanimous—they voted 1,418 to 24 in favor of the boycott. I do think that anyone getting half the mark-up now that he was getting in 1939 is entitled to sympathy. Even if my opinion of chocolate is quite as low as Chesterton's was, I don't think a low mark-up is the answer to the Chocolate Evil.

AS YOU may remember, Chesterton mocked the English more than once for thinking of cocoa as a necessity and grain as a luxury. And in a memorable song against various drinks, he gave cocoa the full treatment:

Cocoa is a cad and coward,
Cocoa is a vulgar beast,
Cocoa is a dull, disloyal,
Lying, crawling cad and clown,
And may very well be grateful
To the fool that takes him down.
Harsh words, though perhaps not so harsh as his words against fizzy pop.

Whether the wholesalers are deeply wronged or not, I suppose their boycott is perfectly legal. Not a conspiracy or anything like that. I am a mere child in these matters, and we children have a mighty bewildering time, though we are often enabled by our innocence and ignorance to make our pronouncements all the more confident and clear-cut.

INCIDENTALLY, people not so simple as myself used to think in the old days that an ordinary industrial strike was a conspiracy. Even lawyers thought so, and the common law thought so. Any single man had a right to withhold his labor, but he hadn't the right to conspire with others. That law was changed after the Taft-Vale case, and the change was fair enough, for it enabled the workman to meet his employer on more equal terms.

But as one John H. MacCallum Scott, of Dunmow, writes in a letter to The Sunday Times (London), the "right" to strike is not a natural right, it is a permissive one. And it is permission to strike against the private employer. It is not permission for putting pressure on the whole community. True, the employee of a nationalized industry or of a public utility should certainly be protected. But the means for his protection have not yet been found; they have scarcely even been considered, even by himself, for he himself relies on a "right" to strike which exists neither in morals nor in law. A strike against the whole public is still, in the opinion of Mr. Scott and myself and other children, a conspiracy not pardoned by the laws which followed the Taft-Vale case.

COMING AND GOING
TALKING of strikes, the London busmen achieved something like a record in flexibility. Last year they struck against too much overtime. This year they struck against the prospect of too little overtime. "Keep 'em guessing!" You pick your side and I'll pick the other, 'thats fair enough, isn't it? And change ends at half-time.

HOW CUTE CAN YOU GET?
I HAVE been sent a clipping from a London paper (name not given) as follows: "The Hon. Mrs. Ian Balfour, who expects her first child in August, tells me she is decorating the nursery rooms of her London house with washable wallpaper... covered with monkeys. Reason for her choice of pattern is odd: 'I have a passion for peanuts,' she told me."

There are several interesting things in this tiny item. To begin with, was the columnist trying to make the Hon. Mrs. Ian Balfour look silly, or was she trying to make him look silly? You may not think it possible to make a columnist look any sillier than he already looks. If so, you err. Feed him the right kind of monkey business and he accepts it every time, and he is a most unwary type, being a hustler and also conceited.

EVEN that cynical gossip-writer, W. Somerset Maugham, was beautifully fooled by "Elizabeth" (of the German Garden). Bored by his rude questions, and knowing he had his little notebook behind his back, she was even able to tell him she practically murdered her husband, and he wrote it all down and printed it and believed it.

She kidded him in other matters too. Even as recorded by himself, it sticks out a mile. Not that one should regret his seriousness. One comical look at himself and he might have quit writing, and this would have been a pity.

Another interesting thing in the snippet of gossip was to see how the American style of gossip-writing has infected England. "Reason is odd" instead of "the reason is odd." The reason for the change is odd, too. Sorry, I mean "reason for change."

FINALLY, supposing the Hon. Mrs. Ian Balfour really is preoccupied with nursery wallpaper to the extent that it becomes news, it is always interesting to watch the behaviour of the mother of a first child. She credits it with being more artistic and fussier than it really is, during its first few months. But whether or not it is fair to print her whims... that is another matter.

The same ideas, the same politics, the same beliefs and the same stagnation.

Your editorial in Saturday's issue headed "The decline of Social Credit" is typical of those who can see but won't. You indeed must be an optimistic individual if after 20 years of Social Credit rule, it is returned with 3/4 of the total house membership, even if it suffered a loss of a few members, point to a decline.

Well I fear most unbiased people will require to put on a special pair of colored Liberal glasses see it in same light.

The curse of Canadian politics ever has been one side or other gets an overwhelming majority. There is no opposition so to speak. Opposition is entirely silenced by weight of numbers, so exactly as the long in power Liberal government at Ottawa is doing it sits in power and does nothing.

There is nothing like a good sized virile opposition to keep governments awake, on their toes and responsive to public opinion.

I venture to state the reduction in the Social Credit majority in Alberta, instead of being a decline, marks a positive gain and will ensure better and better government on part of an already good government.

I would further add Mr. Editor, and call your attention to editorial in your column on "resuscitation" of Liberal Party in B.C. and further venture to say if you put your hand on top of your editorial head and keep it there till there is a resuscitation of Liberal fortunes throughout the Western Prairie Provinces and B.C. you will keep it there a long long time.

Let's now see if you have the intestinal fortitude, publish this intax.

MISSED THE POINT

It is gratifying to see immigrants take an interest in the politics of their adopted countries, but it would seem that these same people could at least wait until they have a complete grasp of the political situation that presently exists before they set themselves up as critics.

The Rev. D. C. O'Connell has, in the past, submitted thousands of words of non-constructive criticism to the press in the form of letters to the editor. His latest attack is aimed at Mrs. Nora Lindsay for statements she had made concerning General G. R. Pearkes. Any school child, I am sure, on reading the comments of Mrs. Lindsay, could have easily seen that her disagreement with recent press statements made by Gen. Pearkes were kept strictly to the present situation that now exists within the Conservative Party.

No doubt was cast by her on the respect the people of Saanich held for Gen. Pearkes, nor was any mention made of the majority by which he was elected in the last election. Anyone who has lived for long in this area would know that Mrs. Lindsay was absolutely right.

It is apparent, therefore, that Rev. O'Connell has again missed the point of a simple press release, the purpose of which, I would say, was to point out that the Conservative people need to get together on what they stand for.

HONOR TO DR. CHISHOLM

It would be amusing if it were not so very unfair and absurd to hear Dr. Brock Chisholm called an eccentric. Name calling and abuse are methods far easier to use than reasoned, rational arguments which carry conviction to any impartial reader by their transparent honesty and sincerity.

No words of mine are needful to extol Dr. Brock Chisholm's brilliant career as a great and gifted psychiatrist or as an illustrious and wise leader of the United Nations. His honored career is known and esteemed throughout the world.

It is exactly because Dr. Chisholm is so gifted in mind and has such a wide learning, and by the fact that he has spent his life in the cause of humanity, that we moderns listen eagerly to his always original and fearlessly outspoken thoughts with the utmost admiration and respect. Would that there were more like him! Perhaps I should add that I have never met Dr. Chisholm.

A Pope dealt with Galileo in no uncertain fashion. On June 22, 1633, in the Dominican convent of Santa Maria Sofia Minerva, Rome, Galileo knelt and abjured the detestable heresy that the earth moved round the sun! The story that he whispered "Eppur si muove" (And yet it does move) is probably apocryphal. Yet it was not until 1821 that the works of Copernicus and Galileo were removed from the Index, and so the faithful at long last were permitted to read that the earth went around the sun.

"RATIONALIST."

PUBLIC PROFESSION OF FAITH

H. C. Phillips has made a vain attempt to pull Dr. J. B. Rowell out of the fire, and has restated the fact that the executive council of the Regular Baptists wishes to restrain the Catholics from bringing Christ out of the tabernacle of the Cathedral in Victoria, and walk with Him in procession to another place for benediction, thereby exposing our sweet and loving Jesus in the Holy Eucharist to the general public: making a public profession of Faith.

Heirs of the Revolution

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

AT THE Fourth of July party Mr. Khrushchev complained to Mr. Walmesley that the Western press was speculating too much about why the Soviet Union was taking a new line: "They pay little attention to what we say and prefer to read tea leaves."

That is not quite true. We are paying the closest attention to every word they say. But what they have not yet said is why they have changed, why they now think their new "decisions" are, as Mr. Khrushchev said at the garden party, "the only right decision." And, last but not least, they have not said why he and the other dignitaries talk big politics at garden parties. It was never like that before.

I may be paying too much attention to the tea leaves but it seems to me that there is a difference between Mr. Molotov, opening up a bit as he did when he was in this country, and Mr. Khrushchev opening up when he goes to a party. Mr. Molotov's new ways fitted very well the theory that there is a new tactical policy in the Kremlin. He was more open than he had ever been before but never so wide open but that he could close up again at any moment.

With Mr. Khrushchev it does not seem like that. Mr. Molotov, besides being an old Bolshevik, is a highly trained diplomatist in the old Russian Byzantine style. Mr. Khrushchev, by contrast, plays himself rather than a role. He acts as a man might be expected to act if he had been immersed in the ingrown life of the Communist party—who is unused to dealing with foreigners and is not much aware of how things look to foreigners, who has no habit of subtlety or complication, and who goes out to get what he is out to get.

The contrast between Mr. Molotov and Mr. Khrushchev has brought back to my mind a talk I had with the late Mayor Reuter of West Berlin. It was in the early spring of 1953, a few weeks after the death of Stalin, and Mayor Reuter, who had once been a Communist leader and was still in contact with Communist officials in East Berlin, was quite certain that there would be a great change in the Soviet Union.

With Stalin gone, said Reuter, there is no one except Molotov left of the generation that made the Bolshevik revolution of 1918. The men who will now be the rulers have grown up in the Soviet Union. They know what the war cost the country. They are proud of what the Soviet Union has won as a result of the war. They look inward, and they pay only lip service to the old revolutionary ideals.

MATERIALISTS
Reuter said he knew many of them and they are materialists in a literal way that the old Bolshevik crusaders and conspirators never were. This new generation wants to develop the country, and to make money, and to enjoy personally the material pleasures of better living. They do not want to die or to make sacrifices for the sake of the comrades in foreign countries.

This is not a literal report of what Mayor Reuter said that evening in Washington. But it is the point of what he said. I was deeply impressed when I heard it because it corresponds so closely with the fact that in other revolutions the original revolutionary deal has almost never, if ever, outlasted the original generation of revolutionists.

The present ruling oligarchy in Moscow belongs to this new generation. If Reuter's theory was right, they would be more materialistic, more isolationist, more turned inward, less adventurous, less conspiratorial, less zealous, than the generation of Lenin and Stalin.

ARMY ASCENDANT

Reading the tea leaves some more, I am reminded of a talk which I had almost two years ago with a high European diplomatic official who knows Russia—before and after the revolution—as few westerners have known it. He too thought the death of Stalin opened up a new chapter, and he predicted that in the Russian revolution as in so many others the army officers would be the successors of the original revolutionists.

Why not the hierarchy of the Communist party, I asked him. Because, he said, the party will lose its original revolutionary zeal, which is what has bound it together, whereas the army, which is covered with glory from the war, will be the focal point of the national feelings of the Russian people.

And what, I then asked him, does that mean for the West? I think it will mean, he said, that they will take no serious military risk in order to expand the Communist orbit and that they will make no concessions which diminish the strategic security that they gained from the war.

Mr. Khrushchev at the garden party seemed to me to be saying something of that sort when he told Mr. Walmesley that something would come of the Geneva meeting if the West talked "to us honestly and sincerely as equals." He was concerned with the notion in the West, which Mr. Dulles has been advertising, that the Soviet Union is leading from weakness. Being talked to as an "equal" means to him, it would seem, being talked to on the assumption that both sides are very strong, and that their over-all war-making powers are equal, that is to say that they are in balance.

BALANCE

It would be better for our cause if Mr. Dulles resisted the temptation to boast about our superior strength, and if instead he acted upon the assumption that there is a balance of power. Then the negotiations could proceed on the principle that there must be two equal sides to every bargain, and that for every quid there must be a quo.

These are not obvious and easy matters to judge—to know whether something gained here is really worth something given up there. But in the field of armaments, which will be a principal subject of the later negotiations, the risks can be kept to a minimum by putting aside for the present the notion of limiting the size of the military establishment, and of concentrating at first on the problem of their deployment and their mobilization. It is one thing to reduce forces at the point of highest tension in the world, and quite another thing to disband these forces.

It will be possible to negotiate with more confidence and with more boldness about the regulation of armaments if at this stage nothing decisive and irreparable is done toward actual disarmament. (Copyright, 1955, New York Herald Tribune Inc.)

7,000th Organ Recital

LONDON—It is strange how a man can leave his native land, go to a country like Britain, become famous there—and remain unknown back home. Stewart Macpherson is an example. Just after the war he became the BBC's biggest personality and his name was a household word in Britain. But who has ever heard of him in Canada, the country he left to seek fame and fortune over here?

Another example is Sandy Macpherson (no relation). For many a long year his name has been as familiar to the English as fish and chips. But his fame is almost totally confined to these islands.

When it was announced that "this famous Canadian" had just done his 7,000th organ recital for the BBC, I got in touch with him to find out more about this noted Canadian who is unknown to Canadians.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Some Recent Advances

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

At the recent meeting of the American College of Physicians, my friend Dr. R. M. Kark showed that with the help of a hollow needle, small bits of tissue can be removed from a kidney. These bits, when examined, can tell what is wrong with the kidney, and if any infection is present.

Dr. Laurence B. Ellis said that 78 per cent of 500 persons suffering from severe valvular disease of the heart had been much helped by an operation which opened up a contracted mitral valve. This valve, which is situated between the left auricle and the left ventricle, is one of the most important in the heart. The operative mortality was less than 3 per cent, except in cases in which the patient was in poor shape. This does not mean that every patient with mitral stenosis (narrowing) should run to be operated on. Some can get by nicely without an operation, while others are so near the end of their rope that they probably could not stand the shock of surgery.

In every case a wise heart specialist should consult with a wise heart surgeon, and then decide what can or cannot be done or what should or should not be done.

Further work is being done on the brain in the hope of finding a cure for Parkinson's syndrome. Unfortunately, the advances made so far have been in the treatment of young persons with the rarer form of Parkinson's disease that follows an attack of encephalitis or so-called sleeping sickness. The operations are not advised for older persons whose Parkinson's syndrome followed little or large strokes.

SAFER WAY OF VACCINATING

Several experts have suggested ways in which the risk of vaccinating children against polio can be lessened. Dr. Joseph Stokes, Jr., suggested that when available gamma globulin could be given before vaccination. Another wise precaution might be to use in making the so-called killed vaccine (like that of Dr. Salk) strains of polio virus that have been so changed artificially that they are no longer able to produce a severe or paralytic form of polio.

Another suggestion has been that when ultimately a live vaccine is prepared, it can be given to children who have first been re-

M-G-M in Hollywood to play their theatre organs in various parts of the States in those days when The Mighty Wurlitzer was the craze. He was at the console for a while at Loew's in Toronto.

When M-G-M installed an organ in their new Empire Cinema in Leicester Square in the 20s they wanted an American organist to launch it. But they couldn't get a work permit for a U.S. citizen so, says Macpherson, they had to make do with the next best thing—a Canadian.

Macpherson was sent over for, a six month's stint. It got extended and extended again, until he wound up by spending 10 years at the Empire's organ. Then, in 1938, the BBC hired him and he's been with them ever since.

THAT MOST FAMOUS of all newspapers, The Times, supposed to be so sedate, definitely has a sense of humor. It's main outlet for light-hearted comment is what is called "The Fourth Leader," the last of its four daily editorials. A recent one was devoted to the word "marginal." Too bad, says the Times, that this word comes really into its own only at election time.

As in the recent election in Britain, "marginal seats" can become the crux of the situation and the big talking point of the nation. And strangely enough, comments The Times, the word is misused in this sense because "a marginal seat, far from being situated on the doodle-prone periphery of affairs, is at the very heart of them."

SCHIZOPHRENICS RECOVERING

According to Dr. Robert H. Israel, speaking before the recent meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, in one big mental hospital at least 54 per cent of the schizophrenics once were discharged in a condition so satisfactory that most of them did not come back in. Now, with better forms of treatment, 75 per cent are being discharged. Seven out of ten of these patients have, as yet, not returned to the hospital.

I have been impressed by the number of somewhat schizophrenic patients I see who, through the years, have earned a living and have managed to keep out of a mental hospital. It is remarkable sometimes to see how well they have succeeded in life. Some have not been able to adjust to marriage, and a few have never married. Some, throughout all their days, have remained reserved, quiet, and a bit uneasy when they have to meet people. Some preferred to live alone.

According to Dr. C. T. Proust, who spoke at the same meeting, the pre-schizophrenic child is usually more sensitive, less happy, and less social than his healthy brother or sister. He may be a sweet, gentle child easy to bring up, but, at the same time, he may be dreamy and impractical. As time passes, such a child may become increasingly self-centred, sensitive, serious and lonely.

Often, such a youngster becomes much upset around his 20th year when he has to face the facts about sex. These often are very disturbing to him. He may be too shy ever to go out with a girl. He may crave affection but he may never be able to reach out for it or even to accept it when it is offered him. Often such a person will say he was brought up by an unloving, schizoid mother who never showed him any affection. Some psychiatrists say that the lads schizophrenia can easily be explained as due to this lack of affection, or this "rejection" by his mother. Curiously, I rarely see an article in which the psychiatrist seems to have thought, even for a moment, of the possibility that the schizophrenic boy is just a chip off the old block—one who inherited a temperament just like that of his mother.

NEW TREATMENT FOR ASTHMA

There is a new drug called metocortandracin, which Dr. A. L. Barach, of Columbia University, says can be very helpful to persons with certain types of asthma and pulmonary emphysema. The only drawback is that sometimes it will produce a stomach ulcer.

Quebec Bans Travel Over Forest Lands

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec department of lands and forests today banned travel in 100,000 acres of forest land in an attempt to curb fires burning throughout the province.

TORONTO (CP)—Cottagers on the shore of Kashe lake near the Muskoka summer resort town of Gravenhurst faced possible evacuation today as a huge wall of fire crept at 300 yards an hour towards them. More than 100 men, volunteers and crew reguessed from a forest ranger school fought all night to bring under control the stubborn fire that has burned over about 1,200 acres of poplar and brush in the last three days.

The fire was within a mile of about 200 cottages this morning. Thick clouds of smoke were visible miles away.

Elsewhere in Ontario, the fire hazard ranged from medium to high, with 124 fires burning. Eight are out of control.

A forestry official said Monday the danger in the extreme eastern and western sections of the province is slight, but two rainless weeks in the north-central region have left forests bone dry.

TOUGH TECHNICAL JOB

Acoustics for Garden Concerts At Butchart's Vastly Improved

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

Take some drapery of green and copper trees, spread thick-piled grass carpet, roof with sky and adorn with frescoes and tapestries of flowers, and what have you got?

A setting unrivalled anywhere in the world. Butchart Gardens, place of perfection for the eye and the spirit. But not a concert hall.

So when owner Ian Ross invites the Victoria Symphony Orchestra to perform in his famous gardens, steps must be taken to overcome the invisible imperfections. First of this season's two concerts will take place Thursday evening beginning at 8.15.

It is a job for the most advanced explorers in the mysterious realm of sound.

And while gardeners trim, water and coax along a rich profusion of bloom, while musicians rehearse under the absorbed attention of a blue-jointed Hans Gruber, two men work quietly in the background, turning this particular area of earth, air and sky into a first-rate concert hall.

TECHNICIANS OVERLOOKED

Alan Macey and Dave Lindquist are the boys few people will be conscious of. Thursday night as the alluring strains of the Empress Waltz, the Water Music and South Pacific regale them with the greatest possible clarity and depth.

This year's sound will be finer than anything previously experienced in two seasons of Butchart Gardens symphony concerts.

Special attention has been given the low frequencies of sound which heretofore have been picked up but lost in transmission. Tuesday I listened to a tape over the system which has been set up and was thrilled with the clarity with which string and woodwind bass notes came out.

FULL RANGE AVAILABLE

Speaker efficiency has been doubled, Mr. Macey told me, not to make the music louder but in order to present the full range of orchestral sound.

In a concert hall the music is "live" because of the many reverberations provided by walls, ceiling and structural projections. Outdoors, these reverberations must be created by artificial means.

Perhaps you'd think that rounded pillar-effect of the plywood back and sides of the stage was just because it looked nicer that way. Not so. With flat boards as a cyclorama, there would be only three reverberations achieved. The fluted effect provides multiple echoes, thus helping to approximate the conditions of the concert hall.

In a plastic shielded booth hidden among the shrubbery, a shopfull of hi-fi equipment has been assembled, including a battery of Williamson amplifiers, adding up to more than 200 watts.

Youth Borrowed Tractor for Fun, Awaits Sentence

A 20-year-old city youth was remanded to Monday for sentence when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of taking a tractor without consent of the owner June 4. Police said Eric Clarke, 3106 Shelbourne, took a tractor from F & F Tractor Equipment Ltd., 2940 Douglas, and drove it in the vicinity.

He drove it into a nearby woodyard and when he was turning the tractor it hit a block of wood and upset. Damage was $191.

Detective Deans Blackstock said he thought it was taken as a prank.

Granny Ends TV Quiz With $32,000 Prize

Bible Expert Says Prayers Responsible For Decision Not to Seek $64,000 Jackpot

NEW YORK (UP)—Mrs. Catherine E. Kreitzer turned to prayer for guidance on whether to keep $32,000 won answering Bible questions on a television quiz, or risk losing it in trying to double it on a final question.

"I prayed for guidance twice, a few days ago," she said, "and the answer seemed to me to be—take the $32,000 and quit."

Tuesday night she did just that. Early today she drove with her husband, James, 55, a carpenter, to their farm home in Possum Hollow, near Harrisburg, Pa.

What will she do with the money?

"Put it away against the time my husband and I aren't able to work," she said. "We aren't going out on any wild spending spree. We've never lived that way and we don't intend to start now."

Mrs. Kreitzer stood the television audience on its ear for about three seconds when she made it appear she would plunge for the $64,000.

She had said before the program that she was having "a lot of fun." When master of ceremonies Hal March asked her if she had made up her mind whether to go for $64,000, she said, "I have, sir."

He asked the decision. Mrs. Kreitzer looked pleased. She rocked back on her heels. "Well," she said, "when I went on the show I was very confident."

She said she had been confident on the $8,000 question, the $16,000 question, the $32,000 question—and she detailed the answers she had given—and then she said:

"And I'm a little confident that I can answer the $64,000 question."

"WOW!" yelled the studio audience, and broke into wild applause.

Mrs. Kreitzer let them finish, and then added: "But I am balancing this confidence with a quotation from Ephesians 4:5, which is, 'Let your moderation be known unto all men.'"

"So . . . I'm going to let my moderation be known and accept the $32,000."

The whole speech was carried off with a showman's timing. Ed Sullivan lost no time in calling her after the show to appear on his TV variety show next Sunday. She said she thought she'd accept.

Mrs. Kreitzer in declining to go further made a Bible error. Her quotation was from Philipians 4:5, not Ephesians. She corrected herself backstage after the show.

TACOMA FOLK ROAR WELCOME HOME TO BERT

TACOMA (Special).—The biggest ovation ever given a Tacoma resident went to Bert Thomas Tuesday when more than 20,000 people here roared a welcome.

The husky ex-marine, a wide grin on his face, sped in an open convertible through downtown streets to cheers of the crowds.

After the parade the distance swimmer was guest at a reception and was presented the key of the city by Mayor Harold Tollefson.

Bert was due to visit relatives at Chehalis, Wash., today and to be in Seattle Thursday to discuss contracts.

It was unlikely he would be able to accept an invitation to attend the Calgary Stampede because of a tight schedule. He's due back in Victoria Friday.

Pair Charged In $18,300 Snatch-Theft

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Police said two London men have been charged with robbery in the $18,300 snatch theft from a Canadian Pacific Railways express driver here Tuesday.

Donald Antone, 24, and Hubert Nevitt, 22, both of London, were taken into custody only 1½ hours after the robbery.

Police said the money was recovered.

Victor Stan, the driver, told police he had returned to his truck after picking up the money when two men accosted him.

Stan said one of the thieves held him while the other snatched the money. Both men then disappeared.

The money, in old banknotes, was a parcel believed being shipped to Ottawa by a branch of the Royal Bank here.

AIDS SON—Screen "villain" Edward G. Robinson has a new, more kindly role today. He has offered to pay his son's alimony and child support obligations—totaling $210 a month—for the next six months. The son last year was jailed for stealing $11 from a taxi-driver, at gunpoint.

CHURCH BELL CRUSHES BOY TO DEATH

BRISTOL, Eng. (UP)—The big bell of Wesbury-on-Trym parish church battered 15-year-old Richard Egan to death Tuesday night.

Richard and a friend decided to explore the belltower after choir practice and entered unbeknown to the church's bellringers, who had arrived for weekly practice. The first tug on the three-quarter-ton number four bell crushed the boy against the wall.

Woman Dies As Truck Plunges Into Ravine

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP)—One woman was killed and three injured here when a truck carrying 18 Indians from a picnic left the road and toppled down a 25-foot embankment.

Dead is Mrs. Madeline Sam, 30. Mrs. Eddie Pascal, Dorothy Pascal, a sister-in-law, and Frances Wallace, are in hospital here. Mrs. Pascal is suffering from a fractured pelvis and Miss Wallace from fractured ribs. Miss Pascal's injuries are not serious.

The Indians, all from Creekside Indian reserve 60 miles north of Squamish, were coming home after a picnic at D'Arcy, 20 miles away from the reserve, when the truck driven by the dead woman's husband veered off the road.

A railway speeder ambulance brought the injured to Squamish hospital.

WHEN IN DOUBT SHAKE IT OUT

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (BUP)—Tony Capitan, who figured he had no time to bother with conventional artificial respiration methods, did the next best thing Tuesday.

When he pulled nine-year-old Yvonne Pella unconscious from the McIntyre River after she fell in, he held her up by her ankles and shook the water out of her lungs.

Witnesses credited his action with saving her life.

Seamen's Union Fails to Upset 'Hot Cargo' Ban

VANCOUVER (CP)—An injunction against the striking Seafarers' International Union (AFL-TLC) was upheld in Supreme Court Tuesday by Mr. Justice J. M. Coady.

The court ruled the union will not be allowed to use the term "hot cargo" in connection with its picketing of docks and Union Steamships Ltd. premises against whom the strike was called 10 days ago.

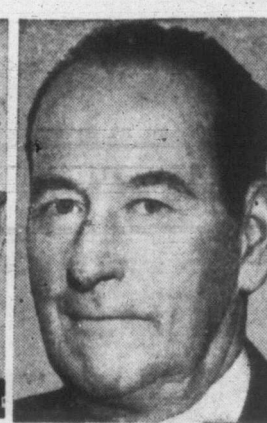

Meanwhile, the shipping company and representatives of the 350 striking seamen met Tuesday for the first time since the strike, appearing before G. R. Currie, federal industrial relations board officer in an attempt to reach a solution to the dispute.

Mr. Currie would not comment on results of the meeting ordered by Ottawa, but said there would be further meetings.

The strike, called July 3 to back up SIU demands for a 12½ per cent wage increase, has made idle 13 ships which normally serve some 70 communities along the B.C. coast and Alaska.

SOCREDS PENALIZED

Two Alberta MLAs Must Pay $12,400

CALGARY (CP)—Judgment for $12,400 and costs of $150 was entered today at the court house by James D. Macdonald, Calgary barrister, against John Landeryou, Social Credit MLA from Lethbridge, and Roy S. Lee, Social Credit MLA from Taber.

Mr. Justice Neil Primrose granted Mr. Macdonald a summary judgment, a judgment without the need of going to trial, in Supreme Court chambers and it was immediately entered at the clerk's office.

The judgment is apportioned evenly, each defendant being liable for $6,200 and half the costs.

A. W. Ludwig, appearing for the two MLAs who were disqualified from sitting in the last legislature because they were illegally renting a building to the provincial government, consented to the summary judgment.

R. H. Barron, counsel for Mr. Macdonald, did not proceed with the other portion of the order he filed last week—a motion to cite both defendants with contempt of court and have them jailed.

The summary judgment was based on admissions made by Mr. Landeryou in his examination for discovery. Mr. Lee adopted these admissions as his own evidence and did not appear for discovery.

Under the Legislative Assembly Act, the first person to bring action against anyone found guilty of a breach of the act is personally entitled to collect the penalty of $200-a-day that must be paid for each day the disqualified person sat in the House.

Any citizen could have brought the action against Mr. Landeryou and Mr. Lee, but Mr. Macdonald was the first to file a statement of claim.

Doctor Files $500,000 Slander Suit

NEW YORK (AP)—A surgeon who operated on the left hand of Dodger star catcher Roy Campanella, filed a $500,000 slander suit in Supreme Court on Tuesday against Walter O'Malley, president of Brooklyn Dodgers.

The action was taken by Dr. Samuel Sherkman, Manhattan neurosurgeon who is suing Campanella for $9,500 for professional services.

The complaint charged that last May 28, O'Malley, in the presence of newspaper men and others, said in part: "I am shocked at the press agent story in support of Dr. Sherkman's exorbitant law suit of $9,500 for what will probably prove to have been an unnecessary second operation on Roy Campanella's hand. ... It appears that he (Dr. Sherkman) thought he was operating on Roy's bankroll."

STAN'S WINNING HOMER 'BIGGEST KICK' OF ALL

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—That zooming home run that broke up Tuesday's all-star game for a 6-5 National League win was Stan Musial's "biggest thrill" in a record 12 appearances in all-star games. "This was the biggest kick I've had in the whole dozen games," Musial admitted quietly in the noise and confusion of the National League's dressing room. "And one of the biggest of my whole career. "I'd rank it along with my five home runs in one day against the New York Giants in St. Louis last year and my first world series appearance with the Cardinals in 1942," Stan said.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Picking up the pieces, and the first is a direct steal from Clancy (Province) Lorange which may help to explain why juniors don't want to play senior lacrosse.

It seems that this particular fellow, a boxy junior, has played four games in company with the big fellows this year. He feels he's good enough to stick, but he likes the comradeship of his junior buddies better, because, as he says, after the game the kids all get together and play the game over again—not so with the seniors—they go home to their wives.

This may be telling tales out of school, but the Irish like to "loosen up" now and then, and, whether you like it or not, the occasional training break certainly doesn't hurt team morale. Matter of fact, it says here, this has been one of the underlying secrets of the Irish success, four straight league championships being offered as evidence. But remember, we said "occasional."

Walker

A lady hockey fan rises to what she claims is a defence of Billy Reay, now head man at Seattle. We disagree, in that no defence of Reay is needed. What we said, ma'am, was that Billy was not "fully accepted" by the hockey fans, not like Roger Leger was accepted, for example. . . . There is a difference. Although Billy had everything on the ball that was needed, Roger had the happy faculty of being able to lift the team to greater efforts on the ice—which is what fans remember most.

Harness racing has been and gone, and will likely return for two weeks next year. . . . That was the word from Bob Randall of the Colwood Park Association before he left town.

But what we would rather like to see is for the Colwood Park Association and the Island Turf Club to get together on common ground for a race track here. It has been said that the Colwood Association will present the ponies at Sandown in September. It has also been said that the Turf Club is prepared to give Victoria racing 12 Victoria so wishes (at Elk Lake).

The Randalls have spent in the neighborhood of $100,000 at Sandown, the Turf Club is prepared to spend much more than that elsewhere.

Simple reasoning would appear to suggest that if the rival groups got together they could produce a winner, and at less cost. Or is that too simple?

Rumor is, also, that a move is afoot to re-activate the old Colwood track.

THE MAIL BAG—To J.B., the answer to your query, sir, if that if world track records are to be accepted, the wind can't be more than 4.473 miles an hour. . . . To R.R. we must concur with your opinion that Intercity Lacrosse League refereeing has not been all it could be, but we disagree with your thought that the Irish are being discriminated against. . . . And we might add that, in our opinion, Bill Dickinson, who is in charge of such official matters, is doing a sincere job of attempting to alleviate any shortcomings that may exist in the refereeing ranks.

Today's vote for a guy who undoubtedly has more team spirit than many of us could name, goes to "Jungle Jim" Hetherington. . . . Cast aside like a withered rose when Gordy Johnston was hired to tend the Shamrock nets, Jim graciously accepted his demotion. But has it dampened his enthusiasm? . . . Not one iota. . . . Jim is one of the first of the "Rocks into the dressing room, one of the first on the floor, and one of the first where the interest of the youngsters is concerned. That's why it was particularly gratifying to see him turn back the Mount Pleasant Indians Monday night. . . .

Victoria's hopes for a second straight British Columbia ladies' golf championship were still in good hands today despite the elimination of one of the city's "big four" at Quilchena Club, Vancouver, Tuesday.

Defeated was Mrs. Shirley Naysmith, Victoria City champion, who lost out on the 21st hole to Miss K. Duff Stewart.

However, defending champion Dorothy Hetherington of George Vale, and Mrs. Margaret Todd of Victoria Club, upheld the city's honor.

Miss Hetherington defeated Mrs. E. Evans of Shaughnessy, 5 and 4, while Mrs. Todd took a marathon 20-hole decision from Joyce Fairweather of Point Grey.

Fuelmen Nip Druggists In Ruthian Semifinal

Menziez Fuel slipped past McCall-Davey, 2-1, in a tight pitching duel at Beacon Hill Park Tuesday night to square their best-of-three Babe Ruth League semifinal at one game apiece.

Barry Menziez scattered seven hits and whiffed four batters to gain the nod, while Everett Sandberg was touched for six hits and struck out eight.

John Pringle of Menziez Fuel hit two singles in four trips to the plate to lead the hitters, with Druggists' Brian Gray's double the only extra-base hit of the night.

In a Pony League game Tuesday night, Jaycees moved in alongside Rotary in third place by shading the Rotarians, 4-2, at Carnarvon Park. Jaycees came through with a three-run third inning for their winning margin.

Barry Harvey scattered seven hits over the distance for the mound victory, while Pat Murphy of Jaycees led the way at the plate with a double and two singles.

John Chesman, Menziez Fuel catcher, glides into first base just before the throw to McCall-Davey first-sacker Ricky Blake in a tense moment at Beacon Hill Park Tuesday night. Chesman and his teammates managed to squeeze through to an upset 2-1 win over the Druggists to square their Babe Ruth League best-of-three semifinal at one game apiece. Third game of the series goes Thursday night. (Times photo.)

Gordon Hangs Tough, But Warren Tougher

Seeded players in the annual Victoria city tennis championships breathed easier Tuesday night when upstart-minded Gordon Hartley was eliminated from men's singles contention.

WARREN CAMERON

net, semi-finalist

Hartley, the surprise of the tournament in early rounds of singles and doubles, was ousted by third-seeded Warren Cameron on a two-hour marathon match at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club courts. Cameron's 6-4, 8-6 victory moved him into the semi-finals.

In other men's singles matches, first-seeded Peter Peacock forced the run of play to defeat Jimmy Wells, 6-1, 6-2 and Bill McCubbin got the best of Gil Bunch, 6-3, 6-1.

In women's doubles, Dorothy Pratt and Desiree McCormack moved into the semi-finals with a hard-won 6-8, 6-3, 6-1 victory over the combination of Gwen Dawson and promising junior Sharon Whittaker.

Tonight's draw follows:

6 p.m.—George Bishop vs. Ron Mitchell, 6-3 6-0—Woolston and R. Tubbill vs. McCubbin, Tooby vs. Fraser, Thompson vs. Hedley, D. McCormack vs. S. Whittaker.

7:15 p.m.—T. Elmsley and Mitchell vs. G. Dawson and P. Peacock.

South Africa Captures Third Test

MANCHESTER (Reuters)—South Africa beat England by three wickets in the third cricket test match which ended here Tuesday. England leads in the five-game series by two matches to one.

Final scores: England 284 and 381; South Africa 521 for 8 wickets declared and 145 for 7 wickets. It was one of the most thrilling finishes ever seen in a test match in England. South Africa's Johnny Waite got the winning runs with a four off Frank Tyson's fast bowling.

England was all out for 381 in its second innings. Colin Cowdrey got 50, Trevor Bailey 38 not out and Godfrey Evans, who came in last man and battled with his broken little finger of the right hand in plaster, rattled up 36 in about 30 minutes.

South Africa was left to score 145 to win in 133 minutes and went for the runs straight from the first ball. Eighteen runs came in 15 minutes. Then Alec Bedser got two quick wickets. South Africa was 23 for 2 and England's hopes of a win soared.

The South Africans still chased the runs and with an hour to go needed 70 runs for victory. Paul Winslow and Roy McLean put on a whirlwind display of free hitting.

Stan 'The Man' Man of the Hour

Musial's Blow Gives Nats All-Star Win

By JOE REICHLER

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Stan "The Man" Musial

toast of the National League for the last 14 years, is the new darling of baseball-mad Milwaukee today even if he doesn't wear a Braves uniform. Those who saw the great St. Louis Cardinal star smash a 12th-inning home run, his fourth in all-star competition, and a new record, to give the National League an uphill 6-5 victory over the American in the 22nd annual all-star spectacle Tuesday, are convinced he's the greatest.

The storybook finish before a capacity crowd of 45,314, marked a fitting climax to a wonderful day for Milwaukeeans, who were treated to perfect weather for their first all-star home game in their third year in the National League. Not only did they see their heroes overcome what at one time seemed an insurmountable 5-0 deficit, but a trio of Braves had key roles in the thrilling comeback.

It was Johnny Logan, Milwaukee shortstop, who singled in the first National League run in the seventh. It was Henry Aaron, Milwaukee rightfielder, who singled in the run that made it 5-4 in the eighth and set the stage for Al Rosen's error that permitted the tying run to cross the plate. And it was Milwaukee pitcher Gene Conley's spectacular feat in striking out Al Kaline, Mickey Vernon and Al Rosen in the top of the 12th that preceded Musial's game-winning blow.

WILLIE TOO

There were other National League heroes, too. Willie Mays of New York Giants contributed greatly with two rally-igniting singles and a leaping catch to the fence catch of a towering drive by Ted Williams that had the home-run label torn off it at the last instant.

There was Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati's slugger first baseman, who had a double and single and contributed a fielding gem on a sizzler by Yogi Berra that resulted in a rally-killing double play.

There were heroes on the losing side, too. Billy Pierce was brilliant in his opening three-inning stint. The little Chicago White Sox lefthander faced only nine as he struck out three, did not give up a run and allowed only a lead-off single to Red Schoendienst.

Mickey Mantle struck the game's longest blow, a tremendous 425-foot home run over the centerfield fence into the distant trees with two on in the first.

Frank Sullivan, the tall Boston right-hander, also did well, hurling a 3-1 scoreless relief innings until that fatal blow by Musial.

But it was the 34-year-old Musial, the oldest National League player in the game, who received the biggest ovation and who was all but hugged to death by his joyous teammates when he smacked Sullivan's first pitch to break up the second extra-inning game in all-star history.

California Youth Leads PNGA Field

SEATTLE (AP) — Jerry Steel-smith, 19-year-old Glendale, Calif., youth, fired a 5-under-par 68 Tuesday to take a one-stroke lead in the second round of the 72-hole Pacific Northwest Golf Association tournament.

Steel-smith had toured the long Ingleswood course in 75 Monday for a 143 total. Tuesday, he scored six birdies on the 6,557-yard course and went over par only once.

George Beecher, slipper leader from Monday's 69 to a 73 but it still kept him in a three-way tie for second with Harry Givan, Seattle, who had a 72-71, and Dick Yost, Seattle, at 72-72.

Tal Smith, San Lorenzo, Calif., Lyle Crawford, Vancouver, and Rod Funseth, Spokane, were next with 145s.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Kenny Lane, 128½, Muskogee, Mich., outpotted Jimmy Ford, 142, Miami (10).

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Baby Vasquez, 124, Mexico City, outpotted George Collins, 128, New York (10).

BELLIES HERE; TIMBERMEN WIN

Shamrocks Go Knocking Again

Victoria Shamrocks, whose lengthy mortgage of the Intercity Lacrosse League lead has been foreclosed by Nanaimo Timbermen, will be back knocking on the door tonight.

Shamrocks take on last-place New Westminster Salmonbellies at Memorial Arena tonight and, as a result of Nanaimo's 8-6 victory over Vancouver Pilseners Tuesday night, Rocks need a win to keep Timbermen from pulling away. Timbermen have a two-point lead over Victoria entering tonight's game and also have one game in hand over the Victoria club.

Shamrock coach Red McMillan will not know until game-time tonight just what kind of a lineup he will have to present to the Bellies.

Goalie Geordy Johnston will be rested for the second straight game with Jim Hetherington taking over the big stick. Bill Bamford and Larry Booth may have to sit out the game, Bamford recovering from an attack of pleurisy and Booth nursing a recurring sore heel. Jackie Northup will be unable to get time off work for the game.

Tommy Druce will be used as utility player and Arnie Ferguson will be moved up to a forward slot.

KOWALYK MAY PLAY

If either Booth or Bamford is unable to answer role-call, junior Ed Kowalyk will be dressed for the game. Kowalyk scored five goals for the Junior Shamrocks Monday night and may get his first taste of senior competition tonight.

In Tuesday's game at Kerrisdale Arena, Nanaimo rolled up a 5-1 lead over the sluggish Pilsener squad in the first half, only to see Pilseners come back to dominate the second half.

Fred Aspin led the unsuccessful Pilis with three goals while Don Ashbee was Nanaimo's top scorer with two.

CAPITALS, FARMERS IN PLAYOFF OPENER

Capitals will have the unenviable task of hooking up with Farmer Construction tonight at Athletic Park when the Lower Island Senior Amateur Baseball League swings into the playoff race.

Neither the Capitals nor the other two teams in the loop, Eagles and Duncan, have had much success with the powerful Farmers this year, who swept to 15 straight league victories.

The Capitals-Farmers tussle will be the first game of a best-of-three semi-final, while Eagles and Duncan will open their semi-final at Athletic Park Saturday night.

Game time tonight is 6:15.

Lions Score Early To Win for Brown

Six big runs in the first inning were ample for Lions at Little League Park Tuesday night as they went on to defeat last-place Elks, 8-4, in American League action.

FOUR POINT SPREAD

Fletchers Jump Softball Lead

Fletchers 10, Arrow 3

Cec Fletchers parlayed a lot of sock and some real power-pitching into a 10-3 win over Arrow Furniture Tuesday night at Central Park to open up a four-point lead in the Senior "A" Men's Softball League.

Fletchers banged out a total of 12 hits off John Furmston and Dave Price, five for extra bases.

Chick Newman had two triples, and George Hall, Flori Goegan and Gordy Jones doubles. Newman had a solid three-for-five night, and the only man kept off the score sheet was Fletchers' reliable third baseman, Bernie Clarkson.

Big Ed Foychuck backed up the attack with a neat four-hitter. He was in complete command the whole way.

Arrows scored the first run of the game in the last of the opening frame after Hall failed to hold a fly hit by Bill Benn. Benn then advanced three bases in a row on passed balls as Wiebe had trouble holding Foychuck's deliveries.

Newman got that one back for Fletchers in the top of the second with his first triple, and Hall put the winners one up in the same inning when he doubled and scored on a two-base error by Bill Benn at second on Foychuck's ground ball.

The game broke wide open in the seventh when Fletchers scored four times on four solid hits.

Dave Price came in to hurl in the eighth and he gave up the final run to Fletchers after Arrows scored their third run in the last of the seventh.

THIRD PLACE AT STAKE
Tonight the battle is on again for third place, Victoria City and Students are deadlocked at present but the outcome of tonight's game will break that tie. Game time is 6:45.

League officials also announced that the Mount Pleasant Legion team from the South Hill League of Vancouver will play Arrow Furniture and Chinese Students here this week-end. Arrows play the visitors on Saturday night. Students play Sunday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

PLAYERS VOTE FOR CHANGE

Bonus Rule on Way Out?

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)

A recommendation to change the major league baseball bonus rule was made Monday by player representatives of both leagues on the eve of the annual all-star game.

The players went on record favoring a limit of two bonus players from each club who would not count in the present roster limit of 25. Teams now can sign an unrestricted number of players who are paid more than a $4,000 bonus, but they must be retained on the major league roster for two years.

Player representatives of the American and National Leagues felt that such bonus players were taking the place of men who should be in the big leagues, but who were sent down to make room for the bonus "kids."

Also recommended were rules to allow the players unrestricted report prior to March 1. The present rule bans spring practice and to provide that players may be invited, but not required, to report prior to March 1. 60-Mile Hike Saves B.C. Prospector

Friend Struggles
3 Days in Wilds

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—A uranium hunter battered by 60 miles of travel over mountain, muskeg and glacier, reached this northern British Columbia mining town on Monday with word that his companion was starving at a wilderness lake.

A few hours later the second man was flown to safety, completing in minutes the trip that took three days for the man who brought word of his desperate plight.

Roland Legg, a Vancouver mining engineer, was in a state of shock from hunger and exhaustion when he stumbled out of the bush and is recovering in hospital.

He set out on the trek four days after he and Howard Fowler of Seattle exhausted the fuel supply of their light plane trying to find a hole in fog blanketing the area.

The lake where they were marooned is only 35 miles north of here but Legg covered twice that distance in making the journey by foot. One can of meat was all he had for nourishment.

Night School Organization Panel Talk

"Organization of a Night School" was discussed Tuesday by a panel at a five-day Night School Directors' conference, held in connection with the Provincial Summer School here.

The conference, attended by 30 B.C. directors, will discuss the objectives, organization and administration of night schools. Chairman is L. J. Wallace, director of community programs branch, Department of Education.

Dr. H. L. Campbell, deputy Minister of Education, opened the session Monday at Lansdowne Junior High School. Other speakers were Minister of Education R. G. Williston, Dr. F. H. Johnson, coordinator of teacher education, and Mr. Wallace.

Graham Bruce, director of adult education for the Vancouver School Board, today is leading the discussion "Night Schools: Past, Present and Future."

THEY ALL GOT HERE TOGETHER

Woman Takes High Road Goats Take The Low Road

FORT LANGLEY, B.C. (CP)—Six goats, a dog and their mistress were reunited at this Fraser River farming community Tuesday a week after they left together in a taxi and trailer from Ontario.

But the trip hadn't panned out the way Dr. Isabella K. A. Macdonald had planned it. In true Scottish tradition, she told the goats, the dog and the two taxi drivers when they reached the Rocky Mountains:

"You take the high road; I'll take the low road."

And that's how they worked it. Taxi drivers Steve O'Connor and Bruno Lemieux of Blairmore, Ont., continued along the high road through the mountains, while Miss Macdonald took the train.

"She didn't like the altitude," said O'Connor here.

Miss Macdonald, a retired medical doctor, brought her odd companions from Alexandria, Ont., 75 miles west of Montreal, to the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacLean.

Taxi fare, hotels and train fare cost her about $500. She plans to remain here, hoping to get into social welfare work in the Fraser Valley.

The goats? No, she doesn't plan on going in for goat ranching.

She explained keeping animals was an old family tradition. She decided to buy one goat several months ago, "but the man brought six to my place and I felt so sorry for them I took them all," she said.

NEW ZEALAND TOWNS SEIZE CRIME BOOKS

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—Police in several New Zealand towns today confiscated books and magazines featuring crime, sex and violence.

Books seized included those of American crime writer Mickey Spillane and health and physical education magazines featuring pictures of nudes.

Justice Minister John Marshall said a decision would be forthcoming on whether the publications came under the provisions of the Indecent Publications Act passed by Parliament last September.

BRIDGE CARRIED 100 FEET

Saskatchewan Swept By Electrical Storm

REGINA (CP)—A heavy electrical storm rumbled across southern Saskatchewan Monday night and Tuesday, causing power breaks, fires, bridge washouts and flooded highways.

Hardest hit was the Kroneau-Balgonie area, 20 miles east of Regina. Five inches of rain fell at Kroneau and district creeks swelled over highways. The top of one bridge was carried 100 feet.

At Balgonie, four inches of rain were reported and the Canadian Pacific line was cut at Davin, five miles south of Balgonie.

Damage in Regina was confined to a few breaks of trolley-bus lines.

The rains left southern Saskatchewan's highway grid in poor condition. In areas of the southeast and southwest, where construction was under way, some stretches were reduced to quagmires.

Langley Bucks BCE Gas Franchise

MURRAYVILLE (CP)—Opposition to the B.C. Electric Co. application to distribute natural gas in the Fraser Valley has been registered by Langley municipal council. Reeve George Brooks said "the people themselves should have the privilege to decide what company should have sole distribution rights."

Saanich Plans Vote On New Library Pact

Saanich will submit a referendum in December asking ratepayers to approve a new library agreement with Victoria.

Reeve Joseph Casey said the new agreement should be approved by council in a few weeks—as soon as some points in the contract have been clarified. But its final approval will depend on taxpayers, he said.

Under the new agreement, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich will be represented on the library board with voting powers. The city will have three representatives and Saanich two.

FEE TO BE CUT

The contract also provides a $1 charge to ratepayers for library services. The present fee is $1.50.

The remainder of the operating costs for the library will be based on book usage and the money raised out of general revenue.

The contract will also give each member municipality an equity in the building when the cost of the new library is fully paid up in 20 years time. Saanich did not have an equity in the building under the present agreement, nor did representatives to the board have voting rights.

While Saanich council has not yet endorsed the new agreement, council has approved in principle the new cost-sharing plan.

(BB) "THE MAGNIFICENT MATADOR" (Capital)—This 20th-Century Fox picture must be considered elegant when measured in wide-screen photography, setting and costuming. All three are near perfection.

Nonetheless, one must have an understanding for the men who fight the bulls and the sport itself otherwise the point of the story is lost and the whole lags.

In "The Magnificent Matador," fine actor Anthony Quinn portrays Mexico's champion bull-fighter. As this he is cheered and revered. But the matador is also a man who has lost himself as well as his brave bulls for he is weighed with a heavy conscience. Unknown to any he has an illegitimate son who is also a matador. By his presence in the ring he fears that his son will try to out-do him and thus be seriously harmed through his bravado or killed. He, therefore, fails to keep a date with the bulls one Sunday and all Mexico mourns then.

So the great matador runs away from himself and his problem into the arms of American Maureen O'Hara.

IF THE PLAY HAD BEEN speeded up perhaps the story would have held more meaning to us from foreign, colder climate. But the worries of the men who fight the bulls, their fears, their soliloquies, their prayers are difficult to understand. Therefore the play fails to penetrate the heart.

Back to photography again. The sweep of the camera lens across the magnificence of the pampas, the quiet dwelling in the woods and fields, the jubilant, yelling crowds as the colorful men bait the brave bulls in the rings below are all part of what appears to be a sincere attempt to bring the feeling, the meaning of the sport to the man who doesn't know about such things.

This "The Magnificent Matador" does but it still fails to make him understand.

216 Movie Theatres Closed; TV Blamed

TORONTO (CP)—During the last 1½ years 216 movie theatres in Canada have closed and many more are expected to close before the end of the summer.

Officials of the Canadian film industry here Tuesday blamed television for the closings. They said attendance is "greatly" affected by TV. (Announcement was made Tuesday of the closing of five theatres in Vancouver.)

Ben Halter, an editor of the Canadian Film Weekly, said five years ago the number of theatres closed in Canada was only about 20.

In the last 1½ years, 136 theatres have been built, bringing the number in operation across Canada to 1,857.

R. W. Volstead, vice-president of Famous Players Canada Corp. Ltd., said the theatres affected are those in smaller communities and neighborhood theatres in large centres.

Officials said those closed or being closed have been on a marginal basis for years and competition from TV has finally forced their closing. They said another five are expected to close within a week.

Taxpayers Ask Vote on Roads In C. Saanich

Suggest Referendum At Election To Establish Financing Policy

SAANICHTON—A total of 622 out of 1,124 taxpayers in Central Saanich have petitioned for a referendum to be voted upon at the next municipal election to determine whether new road construction shall be paid for under local improvement plan or from general tax revenue.

Major C. A. Dadds, representing the committee circulating the petition, made known the result of the canvass at Tuesday evening's session of the council.

The petition read: "We, the undersigned ratepayers of Central Saanich municipality, request the municipal council not to carry out any new road construction work, other than the normal maintenance of regular roads which have already been accepted for municipal maintenance, until a referendum can be voted on by the ratepayers of Central Saanich at the next municipal election, to decide whether all new road construction shall be paid from general tax revenue or, as is the present policy of practically every municipality in this general area, from funds raised by a local improvement loan, supported solely by the property owners facing these new roads, who directly derive the major benefits from such local improvements."

Maj. Dadds specifically stated that the petition did not interfere with the council's regular functions in carrying out the normal administration of the municipality, such as repairing or rebuilding existing municipal roads. It referred solely to a new policy departure by the municipality—that of building new roads.

Names Checked on Tax Rolls

All names on the petition, he said, had been carefully checked from the municipal rolls for authenticity. Many additional signatures, it was claimed, could be obtained by a further canvass.

Mr. Harold Andrew, who has consistently challenged Reeve Rupert Brown on the issue, objected to the "new policy" phrasing of the petition. It tended to defeat the authority of the council, he said.

Maj. Dadds said the petition was prepared in the democratic way to let the taxpayers decide on the question of local improvement or otherwise. He denied that it was intended to defeat the council.

"You arbitrarily refused to allow it to go to a vote of the people," the reeve said. "What I said," countered Mr. Andrew, "was that I would not support it."

"Don't you think we are wasting our time?" interposed Mr. Harry Peard, when the matter threatened to get out of hand. "We were elected to do the municipality's business."

Mr. Andrew brought the discussion to a halt by moving that further time be given to the study of the petition and that the matter be hoisted until next council meeting. The motion carried.

Residents Will Share Cost

Residents of Senanus road, represented by Redvers E. Smith, sought council's approval of a plan for improvement by the property owners themselves of the tortuous roadway extension from Mount Newton crossroad to the Saanich Inlet beachhead.

Mr. Smith suggested the Senanus road development be carried out under the local improvement plan in a modified form. The property owners, he said, were prepared to shoulder the cost on a local basis up to $1,000, but wanted the municipal ity to handle the contracting end of it.

It was suggested that the width of the existing road with installation of culverts. "The present width," said Mr. Smith, "is acceptable to us."

He added that a 40-ft. road would be in excess of their requirements.

Reeve Brown observed the maintenance could not be undertaken by the municipality unless the road was of standard width. The existing road is some 18 feet wide with a series of hairpin turns on a steep descent.

Brentwood Foreshore Leases Due For Council Discussion

By DICK FREEMAN
Times Brentwood Correspondent

SAANICHTON—The controversial question of foreshore leases on the Brentwood waterfront will come before Central Saanich Council at a special meeting called for Tuesday at 7 p.m.

At the same time council will confer with members of the Sidney village commission on the question of Sidney garbage disposal. The garbage disposal question is being revived from last year, when Sidney sought a site on the north side of Mount Newton for use as a garbage dump.

The former council was strongly opposed to the Mount Newton site, and in view of the renewed conversations it would appear that the present waterfront garbage disposal site still remains unsatisfactory.

The proposed granting of extended foreshore rights to Brentwood sport fishing interests has aroused some opposition along the residential section of Brentwood Bay since the applications of certain fishing operators were first made. Just what jurisdiction the municipality has on this question is not immediately clear as the granting of foreshore leases is a federal matter.

In view of the number of complaints made, however, council decided to call a special meeting in order that the complainants might be heard.

Some residents object to having their view spoiled by the increasing number of commercial float extensions claimed to be cluttering up the waterfront. Those making recent applications for boat landing extensions are The Anchorage, operated by Capt. Eric Barnes; Jack Miller, and Claude Creed.

N. Cowichan Reeve Urges County System

Needs Surpass Municipalities

DUNCAN (BUP)—A county system of municipal government similar to Ontario's system should be established in British Columbia, according to the reeve of North Cowichan.

Reeve C. A. P. Murison told a Duncan service club that a "new concept of civic government on the municipal level is needed in B.C."

The county system received the approval of provincial Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black at the last convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Reeve Murison described the need for a different system in these words:

"The increasing demand for municipal services of every kind, sort and description, coupled with their growing cost, is resulting in a growing recognition of the need for a wider field of administrative action than that enclosed within municipal boundaries."

Port Alberni Tax Collections Higher

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Tax collections in the city of Port Alberni show an increase both in dollars and cents and percentage-wise over those of last year. Total collection to the end of June amounted to $346,383, compared to $338,158 on the same date in 1954.

AROUND AND ABOUT

With Jo Healy

One thing to be said in defence of the distastefully clothed pocketbook is this. If you know your authors you can ignore the pithy shell and find inside the sweet kernel. And with experience you can browse a bit before you buy, and decide whether this is fair literature or trash. The subject isn't too important. Anything makes good reading, if it's well written.

But the thing against this mass-production of books is that if you select your reading with discrimination there's still too much available. Years ago I pored greedily over every book that came into our possession, whether owned by us or borrowed. I finished them with reluctance, dreamed over them, and, most important, REMEMBERED them books and books later.

Now, with a surfeit of reading material based on an exchange system in the neighborhood, I find that I am rather vague about whether I've read this book or that and what it was all about if I did.

So I'm going to discipline myself, forbid myself paper-backs. Perhaps I'll have time to re-read, as I once did, the old favorites.

Overheard in a dimly-lit hostelry, above the soft strains of music, the tinkle of glass, and the hum of subdued voices: "There's this guy, see, he gets him a teevee set like, and for three months he sits there watchin', watchin', way after midnight till the last show goes off. So he gets up to go to work every morning at 6 a.m. So then this guy, like, he has like a nervous breakdown and you know what the doc tells him? The doc says what caused it all, see, was teevee-tis."

Isn't there something touchingly comical about the man of the house tip-toeing through each room, brogues thudding at every step, clicking off lights and radio, a bit guilty at sitting up an hour and a half after Mom and the kids have gone to bed in order to finish that "who-done-it"? Inevitably trips over the cat and as inevitably swears audibly — under his breath.

Early Fish Get The Worm... Maybe

Waiting for a big one are young anglers Kenny Yardley, 12; Robert Yard, 12; Dennis Yardley, 13, and Paul Yard, 9, who headed for the Ogden Point breakwater at 8:30 this morning to get an early start in the annual children's fishing derby, sponsored by the city playgrounds. "We're trying to catch a fish while they last," confided Paul. Prizes were to be awarded for the first six fish caught, according to weight. Judge was playground supervisor Gordon Hartley. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

WITHER WEATHER? Lurking Clouds May Dim Rays Of Summer Sun

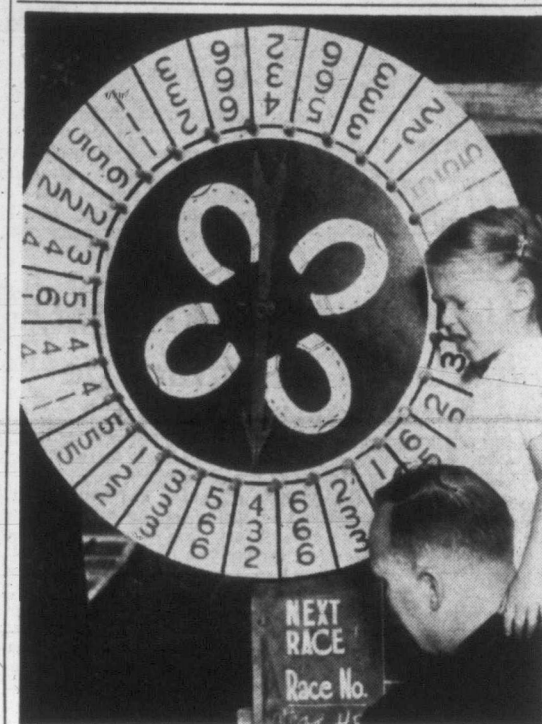

If you like to simmer in summer sunshine, do it now should be your motto. The present skin-reddening weather may or may not last until the week-end—depending what a moisture-laden cloud bank only a few miles North of Victoria decides to do.

"We are in a precarious position due to the moisture area which ends just this side of Comox," Weatherman Bill Mackie explained. "But," he added, edging cautiously a few inches out on the limb, "this splendid weather may hold for a day or two. Possibly even three."

Temperatures vary across the city because of inshore winds, Mr. Mackie reported. Official temperature at noon today was 61, but 65 and higher marks were being recorded in downtown and residential areas.

Tuesday's high was 65, officially, but one reliable thermometer in a sheltered area registered 73.

RCMP Warn Against Using New Highway

$300 Fine Threatened

Motorists who have been driving down the new Island Highway from Douglas Street right through to Goldstream, by-passing or demolishing the occasional stop signs are due for a jolt. It may cost them up to $300 if they continue to do so.

Colwood RCMP have been notified by the B.C. department of highways that the highway is now closed from Helmecken to Goldstream until further notice, which will be given when paving of the long stretch is completed.

Paving has been under way for some days, workmen on the job being considerably handicapped by a stream of private and commercial vehicles.

Barriers that stretched clear across the road at the Helmecken, Millstream and Florence Lake roads have been frequently knocked down, sometimes smashed by travellers in a hurry.

RCMP have been asked to enforce the highway department's ruling and will prosecute any who ignore it.

No light matter will be made of it, officers say. The law providing fines of a minimum $50 to a maximum of $300 for offenders.

The highway will still be open as far as Helmecken Road where motorists going up-Island can turn off, reaching the old Island Highway via Jedgeberg Road.

First Gyro Patron

Little Miss "Bobbie" Malloff today was very first player at lucky-number wheel at Gyro "Hole-in-One" festival which gets under way at 8 p.m. today on Victoria High grounds. She was among children surrounding green-sward site and colorful tents long before fun-fest started. Hoisted high, she spun wheel happily for a time, before registered slight disapproval of whole business. Carnival will be held each night through Saturday when starting time will be 2 p.m. Proceeds go to Cadboro Bay Park, Gyro Club development, for use of children. (Times photo.)

RESCUE CLIMBER UNDERGOES THIRD HEAD OPERATION

The 17-year-old hero of a Vancouver Island mountain climbing accident last November had a third skull operation in Vancouver today and was reported in good condition.

Doctors inserted a plate in the head of Leo Lynn of Port Alberni, who was struck on the skull by falling rock while climbing to give first aid to Charles Faulkner of Victoria, injured on the upper slopes of Mount Arrowsmith. Faulkner broke a leg while climbing to the wreckage of an RCAF aircraft.

City Sixth Lowest For Alcoholism

Victoria has the sixth lowest alcoholism rate of all the major cities in Canada, the Ontario Alcoholism Research Foundation announced today in Toronto.

Its close neighbor, Vancouver, has the highest rate, although Montreal has the largest total number of alcoholics of the Canadian cities checked.

Victoria has 1,390 alcoholics per 100,000 population, well below the national average of 1,580.

Lowest incidence of alcoholism is in St. John's, Nfld., with 680 per 100,000. Others are Trois Rivières, 790; Edmonton, 910; Halifax, 950, and Saint John, N.B., 1,300.

Vancouver's rate, tops in Canada, is 3,230. Runners-up for the dubious title are London, 3,150; Quebec City, 3,050; Verdun, 2,860; Toronto, 2,620; Montreal, 2,430; Winnipeg, 2,070; Ottawa, 2,020; Hamilton, 1,840. Windsor and Calgary are tied with the same rate of 1,720.

The survey shows a total of 140,000 known alcoholics in Canada. British Columbia has the highest rate among provinces—2,440—and Newfoundland is lowest with a rate of only 550.

Among reporting nations, France is listed with highest alcoholism rate of 5,200 to 100,000 adults.

Support for Victoria's needy came from an unexpected quarter Wednesday when a group of youngsters from Rudd Park rang neighborhood doorbells in the name of the Surplus Food Stall.

They collected 148 tins of food.

Ringleaders of the voluntary campaign were Bobby Knowles, Terry Travis, Rickie Knowles, Jimmy Lilley, Douglas Harrison, Larry Harrison, Richard Lewis and Norman Lewis.

Mrs. Russell Cheney, playground supervisor, presented the large hamper to food stall co-ordinator Mrs. Sidney Penny.

The stall will be open this Saturday at 2 p.m.

B.C.-Alaska Railway Idea Revived Again

Magnuson of Washington Says Senate Committee Approves Commission Probe

A proposal to build a railway through British Columbia linking Washington State with Alaska has been revived.

In Washington, D.C., Senator Warren Magnuson, Washington State Democrat, disclosed that the Senate Foreign Relations committee has unanimously approved and reported to the senate floor his resolution to establish an 11-member Alaska international rail and highway commission.

B.C. government ministers could not be contacted today on the subject, but it is expected the proposed commission will get in touch with them when it is set up.

FIGHTING FOR 10 YEARS

Senator Magnuson has been fighting for 10 years for such a railway and at one time there were proposals the B.C.-owned Pacific Great Eastern would be used as part of it. He took the matter up with former premiers John Hart and Byron Johnson, but the plan never reached the practical stage.

In Washington today he said the planned Senate commission would study the feasibility of a rail and highway line through the Rocky Mountain trench of Western Canada connecting the United States and Alaska.

The commission also would be directed to study rail and highway connections between coastal ports and cities, and main line routes found by the commission to be most feasible.

It would be authorized to hold hearings, call witnesses, and co-operate with any commission or officials of Canada or the province British Columbia.

HIGHWAY POSSIBLE

Magnuson said committee action came after he told the hearing "many experts in the field contend a commission might conclude on the basis of its studies that a highway is

Q.—When did Edmonton become a city? L. N. E.

A.—In 1794 the Hudson's Bay Company had a fort built 25 miles down the North Saskatchewan River from the present site. It was destroyed by Indians in 1807. In 1819 the fort was firmly established at the present site and the name Edmonton was retained. The CPB having been built, it was incorporated as a town in 1892 and as a city in 1904. When Alberta was erected into a province in 1905, the city was made the capital.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

One of the activities I enjoy in this fair city is answering the telephone on the radio program called "Telophonin."

The only trouble is, while everyone who phones in is asked to express an opinion, I am supposed to confine my remarks to "um, er," and "I see."

Which is a pleasant chore most nights, but the other evening, the topic under discussion was, is it a good idea to install safety belts in automobiles?

And I would have dearly liked to express my opinion, as follows:

I am heartily in favor of safety belts in automobiles. Safety belts might help stop people from killing themselves, and others, on the Queen's Highway.

They are at least a step in the right direction. But I feel other steps are also necessary before the defective nut behind the wheel can be prevented from causing fatal accidents.

Among these steps are: At least eight inches of foam rubber across the dashboard. A steering column mounted in an outer cylinder containing hydraulic fluid, so it will give when smacked by the ribs of the driver.

Complete elimination of the windshield, to avoid people smacking their noggin on same. After all, who can object to a little fresh air in the interests of safety?

An accordion-type construction for the hood and all the mysterious machinery beneath it, so it will fold in neatly and not wind up in the laps of those in the front seat.

A built-in doctor and nurse in the back seat, just in case structural precautions are insufficient.

A stretcher, inhalator, blood transfusion unit, a band aid and a St. John Ambulance man in the trunk.

With these steps taken, only one more would be necessary to guarantee relief from being killed in your automobile.

Place the automobile in the garage, lock the door, and throw the key in Juan de Fuca Strait.

6 Apartment Owners Fined on Gas Ruling

Inspector Warns More Prosecutions Likely If Uninspected Appliances Continue in Use

Local gas inspector Eric Fredin warned today more charges will be laid against rooming-house and hotel owners allowing operation of uninspected gas hotplates in sleeping-rooms.

His warning came after six persons were fined in city police court on charges of failing to have such equipment inspected by a licensed gas-fitter.

All appliances were required to have been checked by a qualified man before Dec. 1, 1954.

Fined $45 or nine days in jail on three charges was Charles Saunders, 717 Pandora. Others fined $15 or three days in jail were Cyril Hague, 1160 Burdett; Henrietta Southwell, 1152 Burdett; Patrick Spratt, 1031 Pandora, and George B. Denison, 1007 Linden.

Annie Lucy Fraser, 1049 Pandora, was fined $10 or three days. Ila Hackett, 1242 Fort, pleaded not guilty and was remanded to Tuesday for trial.

In each case, court was told, circulars advising that the equipment must be inspected by a qualified man were sent out.

The charges were laid under the provincial gas act. Inspector Fredin said the charges involved gas fixtures in sleeping rooms.

He warned that under the provincial gas act, BCE inspection is not recognized.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN OUGHT TO KNOW

Quit Parties for Politics Says Visitor

By TONY DICKASON

Drop the tea parties, ladies, throw the bridge cards into the trash can and take up a worthwhile project like politics!

That's the advice today from Mrs. W. J. Combellack, former mayor of Signal Hill, Cal. (pop. 5,000) and Past Supreme Worthy High Priestess of the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem.

This means she is tops, civically speaking, and her dignified title means she is tops also in the 200-member order throughout the United States and Canada.

She and her husband are visiting here today at the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Combellack, a brisk 62, doesn't take to women without families who waste their time in gadding-tea parties and such like. "Drop the tea cups in a heap, and get going," she advocates on women entering civic politics. "If I had started

20 years ago, I'd have gone farther."

She is on city council, and chairman of the city's finance committee.

"Do you know we have the lowest tax rate in all California? I think this is just good business administration."

And she smiled. She's held her finance chairman position seven years.

"I'm pretty tough on them," she admits, concerning the rest of the civic council—all males.

She has her worries; Signal Hill is topped with oil wells, which mean lots of money. Town and property assessment is $30,000,000.

Women in politics, she maintains "are more conscientious, as the woman is in the habit of stretching the dollar in the home. It works the same way in civil office."

Her advice to unencumbered women?

"Take up politics, and render a service to your community."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Spruce-Up Or Divide Rooms
With Wrought Iron Shelves

By PENNY SAVER

You've seen the pictures of ultra-modern homes that put into use the wrought iron racks and shelves. Don't they look smart! And they're not terribly expensive, either. While shopping the other day, I found a whole wealth of wrought-iron shelf sections. You can put them together in any shape or need for your favorite room. For stacking books, records, for a base for the radio or TV set, or for a whole-wall bookcase, these are the handiest things yet. They can also be used as room dividers, so that you can still see through. The 20-inch shelves are $1.45; 24-inch, $1.65, and 30-inch, $1.85.

Many of the girls in town are wearing the neat and pretty hair bands being sold in a local store. The ones I particularly noticed were of clear, thin plastic, and they hug the head, keeping curls and wisps where they should be. The plastic is of just the right size so that velvet tubing, selling at 29 cents a yard, will fit over it perfectly. Now, girls, you can match the headbands, which are called "halos," to your favorite sports outfit, or party dress. The halos are 29 cents each.

To match the rest of your gay sun-time clothes, buy one of the attractive summer purses I saw today. They're made in Italy, of a fine, soft raffia or straw.

They're in the shape of different fruits. One looks just like an apple, complete with green leaves and stem, which is the handle. Another is a yellow-green pear, another a strawberry, and a lemon, too. The lid swings back to reveal a taffeta-lined, roomy inside that will serve you all summer long. The amazing thing about these bags is that they really look like what they're supposed to resemble. The strawberry even has little black "seeds" dotted here and there, and the lemon is of such a color that it makes your mouth water. You'll love them, and their price, too. From $2.39 to $3.95.

Once before I mentioned a little device for watering plants. Well, here's another one. In fact, it's a set. There's "Little Drip" and "Big Drip." They're plastic tubes with graduated ends. They water and feed your plants scientifically from roots.

Farm Women
Can Help

SASKATOON (CP)—Mrs. Mary McIntosh, women's president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union, says the farm wife must do her share to make agriculture recognized everywhere as "a proud and vital industry."

Addressing the Interprovincial Farm Union Council convention on Tuesday, Mrs. McIntosh said the farmer continued in business by cutting his standard of living to suit his income. Farm women existed on the "leftovers" from operation costs.

"We are fed up with a system that is so unfair. How can we properly feed and clothe our families or plan their education if we never have an adequate income."

Baby's first steps are a big moment, a time for pleased laughter by the parents and lots of hugs. These pleased reactions have a good effect on baby's walking, as well as his personality. He gets the idea that it's good entertainment, and will continue to step out.

up. Water the plant as usual, insert tube into soil full length of graduated point, fill the tube with water, and thereafter, water will be fed the plant and all you have to do is fill the tube. Soluble plant food may be added later. It's a wonderful set for keeping your plants alive while you're on holidays, and it costs 35 cents.

Make An Asset of Height,
It Can Be An Advantage

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

As one's height cannot be changed, the only sensible thing a person can do is to make an asset of whatever height the individual has. That is what I told the girl who wrote:

(Q)—"I have a problem and would like a little advice from you to help me solve it. I am 19 years old and very close to six feet tall. As you can see, my problem concerns my height. Everywhere I go, I hear people say the same thing—'Isn't she tall,' 'Look at that tall girl,' etc. I had a job and quit it because of the remarks I was hearing about my height. Now I stay home and mind children. I don't go to dances or any social affairs because the other kids my age always talk about my height. All I do is stay around the house and wish for something I'll never get—that is, a little shorter. My height has made my life a very unhappy one."

(A)—Your attitude toward your height is really what is making your life unhappy, not your height itself. You cannot change your height, but you can change your attitude.

You are tall for a girl, no one would try to deny that. However, girls of today are, on the average, only a few inches shorter than you and many of them wear heels to add to their height.

You should do all you can to make your height seem less. That does not mean stooping, as so many tall girls have a tendency to do. Instead, it means selecting clothes that will make you look shorter than you are. Never wear pencil-skirt, high heels or a hair-style that will add to your height. Wear flats, a hair style that will make people look down rather than up, and full skirts.

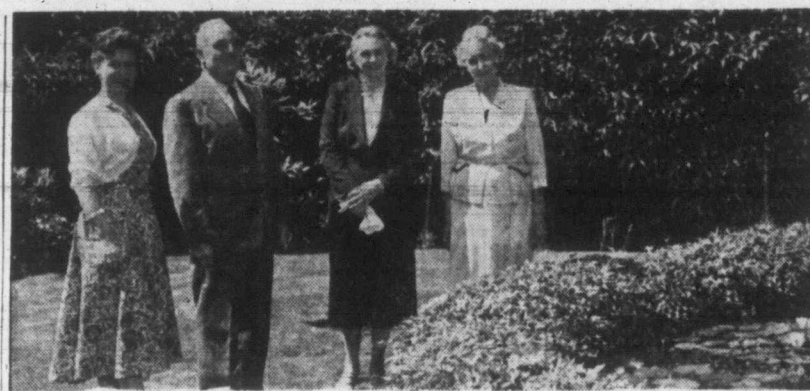

In the business world there is a real advantage to being tall; if you will develop poise and dignity to go with it. It should enable you to command the respect that doesn't often come to short girls.

There must be tall boys at the parties and dances who would prefer dancing with you to dancing with a short girl who makes them stoop. If you are attractively dressed, jolly, and self-confident, you have just as good a chance to be popular as a short girl.

Exchanged Career for Marriage

By TERRY FRENCH

She took her first ballet step at 18 months; was sent to England to study at 12 years; had a debut at Albert Hall in London at 14—and became a prima ballerina at 16. This is the story in a nutshell, of the early career of Mrs. Norman Eversfield, now the wife of Lt.-Cmdr. Eversfield, RCN.

She was born Bebe de Roland in New Zealand. When she was 12 she was so talented the people and government of that country raised enough money to send her to London to study with Madame Lydia Kiasht. At 14, she made her debut. Then came the war. Madame Kiasht organized a Russian Ballet soon after the beginning of the war, and Bebe de Roland was its prima ballerina, at the wonderful age of 16.

The company toured England, Scotland and Wales throughout the war years.

FAMED ON STAGE

A foot injury forced the talented young ballerina from the ballet stage and she joined Jack Hylton's musical comedies, well known in theatrical circles. Her very fine roles and excellent dancing, which was in a lighter vein, gave her the coveted spot as prima ballerina in His Majesty's Theatre for two years.

Then something else new and wonderful happened. Australia invited Bebe de Roland to appear in "Follow the Girls," which had been a huge success on Broadway. There were all types of dancing, good speaking parts and opportunities. The show ran for about 18 months. At this time, the sky-rocketing New Zealand girl was 22.

DANCED FOR CHARITY

It was then she decided the time had come to see home again. She says today, "I thought I would like to repay the people of New Zealand for starting me on my career." That's just what she did, by giving charity performances all over New Zealand.

While she was still in England and touring, she had one big ambition. That was to dance in the United States, where she dreamed of a wider scope for interpretation and greater opportunity for modern expression of ballet.

So, the New Zealand tour was completed, she set out for New York by way of Toronto. Here fate took a hand. In the Canadian city, she met and married Lieut. Norman Eversfield, whom she had known in England, two years before. And thoughts of a professional career were forgotten.

The newly-married couple lived in Halifax for a time, where Mrs. Eversfield opened a dance studio, only to have to close it and leave her students when her husband received transfer orders.

In Victoria, she is conducting summer classes Saturday mornings at the Velda Wille Dancing Studio.

She is vitally interested in arrangements and choreography, and if the navy should send her husband to some city where there is a TV station, she would seriously consider trying her hand at that work.

Would she like to start another studio? "No," she replied, "I'm willing and eager to help out the students in Victoria."

Debutantes Receive Last Minute Briefing Before Presentations

LONDON (CP) — Forty-five excited Canadian debutantes Tuesday received last-minute instructions for their presentation at Buckingham Palace.

Dressed in light summer suits and frocks, they crowded into the home of high commissioner Norman Robertson for a brief rehearsal of Thursday's big event. Mrs. Robertson served tea and handy tips on saluting royalty.

This year's Canadian group is the largest yet presented at the palace.

One debutante, swimmer Marilyn Bell of Toronto, did not appear and friends could not explain her absence. Marilyn, 17, is in Britain training for an assault on the English channel.

(The Telegram, Toronto newspaper sponsoring Marilyn's swim, says she is suffering from a mild case of quinsy, a throat inflammation, and was ordered to bed by her doctor.)

After a crisp, military-type briefing from Brig. Sir Norman Wilmshurst Gwatkin, assistant comptroller in the lord chamberlain's office—"turn left, curtsy to the Queen, take a few paces to the right and do the same before the Duke of Edinburgh"—the girls lined up to practice. Several wobbled uncertainly on high heels.

Thursday, the girls will pass before the Queen and the Duke at a formal ceremony in the palace ballroom. Then they will join Commonwealth visitors at a garden party on the palace lawn.

Picnic Held

The Icelandic Women's Club of Victoria held its annual picnic recently at the home of Mrs. Gaudi, Langford. Mrs. Jacobina Johnson, Seattle, addressed the group and spoke on the interpretations of Scandinavian culture in America. She paid special tribute to Dr. Henry G. Leach, who has been a guiding light in the work of the foundation for 40 years. Accordion selections, were played by Mr. Solvason, and everyone joined in the singing.

Among the debutantes are Ellen Stone, 19-year-old daughter of Thomas A. Stone, Canadian ambassador to The Netherlands, and Gail Robinson, 24, of New Westminster, B.C., an employee in the high commissioner's office.

Warm Weather Is Time For Iced Tea, Cookies

Hot days bring big thirst. Big thirst calls for iced tea—quarts of it. At least that's the way it is in a lot of houses. There are many ways to make it. Here is one of the easiest. Brew it in a saucepan. Use 7 tea bags, or 2 teaspoons loose tea for each quart of water, or 2 tea bags or 2 teaspoons of loose tea for each standard measuring cup of water.

It's just as important with iced tea as it is with hot tea, to use a good fresh tea. You can be sure of fresh tea if you buy tea that's well protected with a sealed wrapping of aluminum foil and then keep it fresh in a tightly closed canister or caddy.

Start out with fresh tea and fresh water, cold from the faucet. Bring the water to a full rolling boil. Take the pan off the heat and put in the tea. Cover and let it stand 5 minutes. Take out the tea bags at once, or if you are using loose tea, strain the tea into a pitcher. Keep the tea at room temperature until serving time, covered. Never, under any circumstances, put the tea into the refrigerator. If you do, it's likely to cloud. When tea turns cloudy, you can bring it back to amber clarity by adding a little boiling water. Cloudiness doesn't affect flavor or quality but most of us don't like the appearance of it. Be a spend-thrift with ice.

Plain sugar cookies go much better with iced tea than rich or frosted cakes.

GOLDEN SUGAR COOKIES
Three cups sifted flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup (2 sticks) teaspoon cream of tartar baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 margarine, 3 eggs, unbeaten; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together into a mixing bowl. Add margarine and mix it in with pastry blender. Add eggs and vanilla and mix with a spoon. Chill dough in refrigerator, at least an hour. On a well-floured board or cookie sheet, roll out a small amount of dough at a time to 1/4-inch thickness. Cut cookies with floured large round cutter. If dough was rolled on a board, remove rounds to a cookie sheet. If dough was rolled out on cookie sheet, remove excess dough from around cookies. Sprinkle cookies with sugar. Bake at 375 degrees F. (moderate) about 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown around the edges. Transfer cookies to wire rack to cool. (Makes 36 4-inch cookies)

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Electrolysis Makes Removing Hair Easy

A letter I have just read said, "I have finished reading an article of yours concerning superfluous hair. You made it sound so simple. I notice that many middle aged women often have hairs on their chins but I am a young girl and have a mustache. This is not very heavy but it is dark and makes me self-conscious. Please tell me what to do about this, and also, does shaving make the hairs on the legs grow in thicker? Please give your readers another pick-up about superfluous hair. It is such a problem."

In usual cases today it really is not a problem! It is just troublesome because you must spend time on this part of grooming if you are to look your most attractive self.

There is absolutely no evidence that shaving the legs makes the hair grow in more quickly or thickly. Shaving does leave the ends stubby, so that when the hair grows out, it is blunt. Many very young women have the dark shadow above the upper lip which this reader describes. There are several things you can do. If the growth is light you can probably bleach the hair twice a week with peroxide, or you can have the hairs removed permanently by electrolysis. Today there are safe depilatories for facial hair. If you would like to know the name of one send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for this information.

Today any woman who is interested enough to take the trouble has no problem in superfluous hair. There are some unusual and extreme cases but these are in the minority. When there is a problem it is probably due to the glandular setup. This is a question for your physician and the electrolysisist. The field of electrolysis has made great strides in recent years. Removing superfluous hair is not so laborious or expensive as it once was. Today, even the hairline can be changed with electrolysis. You probably have seen women who would look so much more attractive if their hair did not grow so far down on their foreheads. This can be changed today. Do not overlook the important grooming aid of electrolysis. It can do much to improve your beauty.

PORT DEFENCE WORRY

Threat of Sub-Based Missiles Problem for Naval Strategists

By DAVE MCINTOSH Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A problem that keeps Canadian navy strategists awake nights is seaward defence of ports.

It now is considered possible, if not probable, that submarines could launch guided missiles at ports from well out to sea.

Couple the missile with an atomic warhead. That means one sub might be able to knock out a port for a long time with a single shot.

The Royal Canadian Navy has been giving close study to this problem for a long time and it's going to come in for a lot more.

Ports are more important than ships or even convoys. If the navy has no ports, it is practically helpless.

ALTERNATE PORTS

To begin with, the navy is looking at the need for alternate ports. That is, if Halifax were knocked out, the navy would have to be prepared to conduct its main operations from another base, say Saint John, N.B., Sydney, N.S., St. John Nfld., or even the St. Lawrence ports.

The same situation arises on the Pacific coast. In the event that all the chief Canadian ports were eliminated, the navy could still work from American bases.

During the Second World War and even up to recent years, seaward defence comprised mainly submarine nets to keep enemy undersea craft from getting inside harbours.

But because a sub today could probably attack a harbor from well out to sea, the navy must be prepared to set up its port defences, not at the harbor mouth, but scores of miles outside it.

NAVAL PICKET LINE

That means picket ships in a big arc around the main port or ports, looking and listening for subs, and a strike force ready to meet any threat, no matter from what quarter.

If war broke out today or tomorrow, the navy probably would not be ready to take on such a big job. But it will in the future. It is a completely new factor in anti-submarine warfare that has arisen since the Second World War.

Another problem taking the constant attention of the navy is how best to protect convoys. This is far from a new problem, of course.

With the advent of nuclear weapons, convoys may have to be more spread out than in the last war. But the navy considers that land targets will be much higher on any enemy priority list for air attack than convoys.

The submarine threat, however, still is considered great, especially off the North American coasts. It is estimated the Russians in another two years will have some 500 submarines compared to the 60 the Germans had at the start of the last war.

Defence against the submarine starts with the bomber, which can attack enemy ports and sub pens. Then comes the convoy escort and the aircraft carrier with its anti-submarine planes and planes to fight off air attackers. With that comes the killer group of destroyers, scouring the ocean for subs and within call of a convoy if needed.

The submarine is more advanced than in the Second World War. It has longer range and can stay submerged longer. The time is probably close at hand when it can stay submerged indefinitely. It is also better armed.

Defence against the submarine navy is also better prepared to cope with the sub. It has better ships, better weapons and better planes than it had even a few years ago. And—the main point—it has better sonar, the new name for asdic, a sort of underwater radar.

WARTIME LOSSES

In the First World War, the Allies destroyed 203 U-boats but German subs accounted for 4,837 merchant ships of more than 11,000,000 gross tons. In the Second World War, the Allies sank 781 enemy subs. A total of 2,775 Allied merchantmen with a gross tonnage of 14,573,000 was destroyed by submarines.

During the last war, six or seven accas were considered adequate protection for a 40-ship convoy. But with the increased submerged speed of submarines since then, the number of escorts may have to be doubled.

20 'GUINEA PIGS' TO SWIM CHANNEL

LONDON (AP)—Twenty long-distance swimmers from 16 countries will act as "guinea pig" during the mass English channel race Aug. 11.

A group of doctors, led by Everest climbers Dr. O. G. Edholm and Dr. Griffiths Pugh, will study the reactions of the swimmers during the race.

They will travel in a navy launch and keep in constant touch with the swimmers.

The swim is organized by Billy Butlin, British holiday camp boss. First prize is a gold cup valued at $2,940. The first man and first woman across will win $1,400 each.

About 50 boats, including the pilot vessels, will leave Folkestone, England, the evening of Aug. 10 for Cape Gris Nez. The swimmers—five women and 15 men—will plunge into the water for the race back to England about midnight.

Crows Peck Pal to Death While Naturalists Wonder

HALTWHISTLE, Eng. (CP)—British bird-watchers are puzzling over the strange behavior of a band of crows. The large black birds were seen to surround and peck to death a companion in this Northumberland town. Naturalists think they may have been carrying orders from a feathered court of law. The Daily Telegraph's "Nature Correspondent" reported that 59 crows joined in the execution.

"They flew down to the grass and after forming the circle each in turn pecked at the one in the middle."

The writer said the victim may have been sick and his death a mercy killing.

MP's UPSTAGED

La Dietrich Stops Show On Visit to Commons

LONDON (Reuters)—Marlene Dietrich swept into Britain's ancient House of Commons today and MPs took time off from law-making to gaze in admiration.

The world's most glamorous grandmother looked her swette best in white suit, hat, gloves and high-heeled shoes. Her only jewelry was a sparkling ruby and gold bracelet.

In vivid contrast to cool Marlene was her 225-pound hostess, Mrs. Bessie Bradstock, who appeared like many other MPs to be willing from the heat.

Marlene lunched with Bessie and five other Socialist members before taking a seat in the distinguished visitors' gallery. There she sat, an intriguing figure of concentration, as MPs on the floor of the House tried to keep their eyes down and concentrate on business.

The German-born actress made a complete tour of the building, followed by autograph hunters. She also chatted with scores of MPs.

Bessie met the actress at a London nightspot last week after accepting the nightclub's offer to introduce her to the audience.

France Proposes Cut In Arms Spending To Aid Needy Lands

Disarmament Proposal Will Be Placed Before Big Four Talks At Geneva

PARIS (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure today formally proposed that the Big Four powers cut their military spending and devote the money saved to an international fund for development of backward countries.

Faure made his formal proposal at a special press conference in the cabinet room of his official residence. Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay was at his side as Faure launched his disarmament proposal.

(Several times in recent years it has been proposed at United Nations meetings that the world's great powers disarm and put the money saved from the military budget into a plan called SUNFED—Special United Nations Funds for Economic Development.)

(The United States and other countries have said that when world disarmament becomes a reality they favor such a use for funds previously spent on arms.)

Faure told the press conference that the Big Four must look for a solution to German unification, the organization of European security and a formula for disarmament.

Unification of Germany would be made easier if European security could be assured, he said.

EASIER TO FIND

"European security in turn would be easier to find if a general simultaneously, real and controlled disarmament became possible at the same time."

"We must, in my opinion, make a particular effort to go toward such disarmament," Faure told the correspondents.

"Why, parallel with the program of general disarmament, not begin immediately by subtracting parts of the military expenses of the Big Four powers, for example, and putting the equivalent in a four power fund, which would open to all who would not utilize it to destructive, sterile and negative ends, but to general social and positive undertakings?" Faure asked.

"Let the Big Four join in reducing their security expenses and contribute the counterpart of the savings to the development of underdeveloped countries or regions of the world to the amelioration of the poorest population," Faure proposed.

Reports from inside the prison said the icy calm Mrs. Ellis had maintained during her trial in June and ever since finally broke Tuesday night.

Prison sources said she sobbed herself to sleep, screaming, "I don't want to die."

Earlier in the night she had said good-bye to her mother and father, who reported she was resigned to her fate. The woman had refused to appeal for mercy. Home Secretary, Gwilym Lloyd-George, the only man who can recommend royal clemency, earlier this week turned down petitions signed by more than 25,000 persons.

Only government and prison officials witnessed the execution.

Bootlegger Payoff Plan Charged At Vancouver Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—Detective-Sergeant Robert H. Leatherdale testified before a Royal commission today that Police Chief Walter Mulligan sought a deal to protect operations of some Vancouver bootleggers.

The former head of the police gambling squad was the first witness to appear before the Tupper commission appointed June 24 to investigate charges of corruption and laxity in the 735-man force.

A few minutes earlier Mulligan, now on leave of absence pending the outcome of the hearing, offered, through his counsel to open his personal financial accounts to commissioner Reginald H. Tupper.

Sgt. Leatherdale said the bootlegger deal was brought up by Mulligan in May, 1949.

Tells of Talk With Mulligan

"On May 3, 1949, when I was in charge of the liquor detail without rank, I was called to Chief Mulligan's office and he told me I was to be made sergeant in charge of the detail," Leatherdale testified.

"He asked me how things were around town and mentioned he understood some bootleggers had been operating for years. He asked if I had any objection to letting a few places run, making only periodic seizures."

"He said this would do us both a lot of good . . . and if you have any friends bootlegging it is okay to let them go on."

Sgt. Leatherdale said the chief had told him Det. Sgt. Leonard Cuthbert knew "all about the arrangements."

A suicide attempt by Sgt. Cuthbert June 24 helped spark the inquiry.

As the hearing opened Mr. Tupper announced that he had been advised by Sgt. Cuthbert's doctors that the detective would not be physically fit to appear before the hearing for eight or 10 days. Cuthbert underwent a minor operation Tuesday.

Cuthbert shot himself in the chest at the police station with his own service revolver. The bullet missed his heart by a fraction of an inch.

'Chief Wants Money'—Cuthbert

Sgt. Leatherdale said Cuthbert called at his home May 5, 1949, to discuss the bootlegging deal. He said Cuthbert told him:

"There is no use beating around the bush. The chief wants money. He has been in office two years and thinks things should open up a little."

Chief Mulligan, sitting in the courtroom, took notes furiously as Leatherdale continued:

"He (Cuthbert) asked me about bootleggers and who would pay protection. . . . He said Joe Celona had already offered $200 a month and this could be increased to $300."

"Cuthbert told me to put the pressure on any bootleggers who weren't paying and drive the business to the ones who were."

"He gave me a list of names and the amount to be collected and told me to split it with the chief and the men on the detail."

Sgt. Leatherdale told Mr. Tupper that he had conversations with prosecutor Gordon Scott on May 7 and May 8 and two days later advised Chief Mulligan that he wanted "no part of the deal."

"I told him I had a clean record and wanted to keep it clean. He said that was all right. I was the man he wanted for the job."

He said he gave a statement to the prosecutor a short time later and that in 1951 when Det. Sgt. Archie Plummer took over the gambling squad "I had a talk with him and told him the facts."

Mulligan Offers Data on Income

As today's hearing opened, T. G. Norris, representing Chief Mulligan, said his client and Mrs. Mulligan "wish to make available to any chartered accountant appointed by the commission the complete particulars of their income since 1927 when my client joined the force."

"My client also wants all banks and trust companies in Canada . . . to make available to R. H. Tupper . . . full particulars of any transactions since 1927 made by my client or his wife."

There was no immediate indication that Mr. Tupper would accept the offer.

Mr. Norris also told the commissioner he had been advised that Howard Sommerville, editor of the weekly tabloid Flash, would be unable to appear before the inquiry and that Louis Ruby, publisher, would only come to Vancouver from Toronto if his expenses were paid.

Mr. Norris had asked the commissioner to ask both Flash officials to appear.

Mr. Tupper said he "wondered if the information Mr. Ruby could supply would warrant the expense to the province."

The inquiry opened to a background of flashing camera bulbs and the hum of television cameras and with about 30 newspaper reporters present in the same courtroom where the last major police probe was held.

2 Women Present at Execution

Crowd of 1,000 Weeps, Prays, Laughs As Ruth Ellis Hanged

LONDON (AP)—A crowd of 1,000 persons—some weeping, some praying, others laughing—stood outside London's Holloway prison for women today as Ruth Ellis, beautiful blonde mother of two children, died on the gallows for the Easter Sunday murder of the lover who jilted her.

As hangman Albert Perrepoint pulled the death trap its slam resounded throughout the building, touching off hysterical cries from other inmates.

Reports from inside the prison said the icy calm Mrs. Ellis had maintained during her trial in June and ever since finally broke Tuesday night.

Prison sources said she sobbed herself to sleep, screaming, "I don't want to die."

Earlier in the night she had said good-bye to her mother and father, who reported she was resigned to her fate. The woman had refused to appeal for mercy. Home Secretary, Gwilym Lloyd-George, the only man who can recommend royal clemency, earlier this week turned down petitions signed by more than 25,000 persons.

Only government and prison officials witnessed the execution.

Two of them were women—Dr. Charity Taylor, 39-year-old governor of the prison, and the prison matron.

More than 30 policemen, standing shoulder to shoulder, kept the crowd outside away from the massive oak gates into the prison yard. Just before the execution Mrs. Ellis' brother, Julian Arthur Neilson, strode up the gates, beat on them, and handed a bunch of white carnations to a guard.

Returning to the crowd, his face ashen and his lips trembling, he said, "I just told him to tell Ruth I would never forget her and God bless her."

The crowd waited until a guard stepped through the gates and tacked a black-framed death notice and the death certificate on the wall.

One man sank to his knees, shouting over and over, "She should have been freed." The police hauled him up and hurried him away.

Frail, grey-haired John Oakes knelt with his hands clasped in prayer, shouting, "for the souls of Mrs. Ellis, of the public executioner and of all of us." A group of men standing behind him laughed.

A violinist stood back from the crowd, sawing on his fiddle. "I have permission to play," he said, "and I'm playing Bach's 'Be Thou With Me.' I'm sure she (Mrs. Ellis) heard it."

A sign around his neck said, "No aims please."

MODEL DIED QUICKLY, QUIETLY

LONDON (UP)—The British Home Office, responsible for the execution today of Mrs. Ruth Ellis, took the unprecedented step of denying a report that Mrs. Ellis had been dragged to the gallows, screaming "I don't want to die."

Dr. Ralph Williams, principal medical officer of the prison, said "the execution was carried out expeditiously and humanely."

Supreme Court Post for Brig. Lett;
Mr. Justice Coady Goes to Appeal Court

OTTAWA (CP)—Brig. Sherwood Lett, 60, of Vancouver, today was appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

The wartime army commander who until recently served on the Indo-China truce commission succeeds the late Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, in announcing the appointment, said it takes effect Sept. 1. The post carries a salary of $18,500 a year.

Meanwhile, Justice Minister Garson announced appointment of Mr. Justice James Moses Coady to the B.C. Supreme Court to the court of appeal of that province, also effective Sept. 1. He will fill the additional appeal court post created by the recent parliamentary amendment to the Judges Act.

Brig. Lett, wounded at Dieppe in 1942, fought in the two world wars. He was born in Iroquois, Ont., and attended the University of British Columbia and Trinity College, Oxford.

UBC CHANCELLOR

Trained as a lawyer as well as a soldier, he is past president of the Vancouver Bar Association. He also is chancellor of the University of B.C.

For a year, 1943-44, he served as deputy chief of the general staff at Ottawa. Later he commanded the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade in the Aleutian Islands. He has been honorary colonel commandant of the Royal Canadian Infantry Corps since 1949.

MARILYN SICK

Sore Throat
May Stop
Her Curtsy

FOLKESTONE, England (CP)—A doctor who examined Marilyn Bell today, said he was satisfied with the progress of the 17-year-old Toronto distance swimmer.

Marilyn has been in bed with a throat infection.

It was not known whether Miss Bell will have to miss presentation with 45 other Canadian debutantes at Buckingham Palace Thursday.

Miss Bell is in Britain to train for an attempt to swim the English Channel, expected later this month.

Mr. Justice Coady was appointed to the B.C. Supreme Court bench on Jan. 5, 1952. He was educated at St. Francis Xavier College, N.S., and was called to the bar in British Columbia in 1916. He has two sons and two daughters and is a member of the Knights of Columbus and a Knight of Saint Gregory.

DOVER, Eng. (Reuters)—Thick fog today forced Florence Chadwick to postpone her attempt to swim the English Channel nonstop, England to France and back.

The San Diego, Calif., marathoner said she will try to set out at 6 a.m. Thursday (10 p.m., PDT Wednesday), just west of Dover.

As hangman Albert Perreault pulled the death trap its slam resounded throughout the building, touching off hysterical cries from other inmates.

Reports from inside the prison said the icy calm Mrs. Ellis had maintained during her trial in June and ever since finally broke Tuesday night. Prison sources said she sobbed herself to sleep, screaming, "I don't want to die."

Earlier in the night she had said good-bye to her mother and father, who reported she was resigned to her fate. The woman had refused to appeal for mercy. Home Secretary, Gwilym Lloyd-George, the only man who can recommend royal clemency, earlier this week turned down petitions signed by more than 25,000 persons.

Mulligan Offers to Bare
His Personal Finances

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two veteran police officers, testifying before a Royal commission, today linked Police Chief Walter Mulligan with Vancouver's bootlegging and gambling rackets.

Detective Sergeant Archie Plummer, former head of the gambling squad, said that while investigating the possibility of a conspiracy among bookmakers he became "quite convinced that the chief constable was part of the conspiracy."

And Detective Sergeant Robert H. Leatherdale testified that the chief tried to make a deal with him in 1949 to protect the operations of some Vancouver bootleggers.

The two officers were the first witnesses to appear before the Tupper commission appointed June 24 to investigate charges of corruption and laxity in the 735-man force.

Sgt. Plummer took the stand a short time before the lunch adjournment and was expected to resume his testimony later in the day.

Moments before the first witness was called, Mulligan, now on leave of absence pending the outcome of the hearing, offered through his counsel to open his personal financial accounts to Commissioner Reginald H. Tupper.

Sgt. Leatherdale said the bootlegger deal was brought up by Mulligan in May, 1949.

Tells of Talk With Mulligan

"On May 3, 1949, when I was in charge of the liquor detail without rank, I was called to Chief Mulligan's office and he told me I was to be made sergeant in charge of the detail," Leatherdale testified.

"He asked me how things were around town and mentioned he understood some bootleggers had been operating for years. He asked if I had any objection to letting a few places run, making only periodic seizures."

"He said this would do us both a lot of good . . . and if you have any friends bootlegging it is okay to let them go on."

"Chief Mulligan, sitting in the

Sgt. Leatherdale said the chief had told him Det. Sgt. Leonard Cuthbert knew "all about the arrangements."

A suicide attempt by Sgt. Cuthbert June 24 helped spark the inquiry.

As the hearing opened Mr. Tupper announced that he had been advised by Sgt. Cuthbert's doctors that the detective would not be physically fit to appear before the hearing for eight or 10 days. Cuthbert underwent a minor operation Tuesday.

Cuthbert shot himself in the chest at the police station with his own service revolver. The bullet missed his heart by a fraction of an inch.

'Chief Wants Money'—Cuthbert

Sgt. Leatherdale said Cuthbert called at his home May 5, 1949, to discuss the bootlegging deal. He said Cuthbert told him:

"There is no use beating around the bush. The chief wants money. He has been in office two years and thinks things should open up a little."

courtroom, took notes furiously as Leatherdale continued:

"He (Cuthbert) asked me about bootleggers and who would pay protection. . . . He said Joe Celona had already offered $200 a month and this could be increased to $300."

"Cuthbert told me to put the pressure on any bootleggers

TWO WOMEN PRESENT AT EXECUTION

Crowd of 1,000 Weeps, Prays,
Laughs As Ruth Ellis Hanged

LONDON (AP)—A crowd of 1,000 persons—some weeping, some praying, others laughing—stood outside London's Holloway prison for women today as Ruth Ellis, beautiful blonde mother of two children, died on the gallows for the Easter Sunday murder of the lover who jilted her.

As hangman Albert Perreault pulled the death trap its slam resounded throughout the building, touching off hysterical cries from other inmates.

Reports from inside the prison said the icy calm Mrs. Ellis had maintained during her trial in June and ever since finally broke Tuesday night. Prison sources said she sobbed herself to sleep, screaming, "I don't want to die."

Earlier in the night she had said good-bye to her mother and father, who reported she was resigned to her fate. The woman had refused to appeal for mercy. Home Secretary, Gwilym Lloyd-George, the only man who can recommend royal clemency, earlier this week turned down petitions signed by more than 25,000 persons.

Only government and prison officials witnessed the execution. Two of them were women—Dr. Charity Taylor, 39-year-old governor of the prison, and the prison matron.

More than 30 policemen, standing shoulder to shoulder, kept the crowd outside away from the massive oak gates into the prison yard. Just before the execution Mrs. Ellis' brother, Julian Arthur Neilson, strode up the gates, beat on them, and handed a bunch of white carnations to a guard.

Returning to the crowd, his face ashen and his lips trembling, he said, "I just told him to tell Ruth I would never forget her and I would bless her."

The crowd waited until a guard stepped through the gates and tacked a black-framed death notice and the death certificate on the wall.

One man sank to his knees, shouting over and over, "She should have been freed." The police hauled him up and hurried him away.

Frail, grey-haired John Oakes knelt with his hands clasped in prayer, shouting, "for the souls of Mrs. Ellis, of the public executioner and of all of us." A group of men standing behind him laughed.

A violinist stood back from the crowd, sawing on his fiddle. "I have permission to play," he said, "and I'm playing Bach's 'Be Thou With Me.' I'm sure she (Mrs. Ellis) heard it." A sign around his neck said, "No-arms-please."
